By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

CLEMENCEAU, the French patriot and mental fighter, is ill and in pain. The man who served his country so well does not deserve to suffer. The old Frenchman jokes about his illness, little he cares for himself. His love is for France.

Some day, before long, in the place to which all good patriots go, he will meet other Frenchmen that have loved their country and done their duty. These will include Jaures, who was murdered at the beginning of the war because he opposed the war and sought to save France from it.

Clemenceau agrees now, in substance, and so do 40,000,000 other French people, with what Jaures said in 1914. He was murdered for saying that then. He is vindicated now. That may be some consolation.

ENGLAND promises to surprise the United States in particular, and the world in general, with a "mystery airplane," now being tried out with great secrecy.

This plane christened, the Bluebird, expected to go 300 miles an hour, five miles a minute, is built by the British Air Minstry.

They actually have an air ministry in Great Britain. That country seems really to appreciate the importance of airplane construction.

HOWEVER individuals here make up for our government lethargy to some extent. Certain Americans are interested in the construction of an airplane with a guaranteed speed of 300 miles an hour that may give the British Bluebird an interesting race.

And Henry Ford has started preliminary work on a superplane to carry 100 passengers and cost $1,000,000.

NIKOLA TESLA says, "power transmitted by radio," that is to say, wireless power, will drive airplanes some day. That's encouraging, giving scientific indorsement to a "guess" made in this column several years ago.

Electricity is power, and power travels through the air, as the lightning proves. It comes from the sky DOWN with crushing force. Why shouldn't it go from the earth UP to supply energy to flying machines."

JOANNA SOUTHCOTT, who died, aged 64, 113 years ago, said she was the lady mentioned in the Apocalypse, made prophecies and left a mysterious box to be opened only in a great emergency, and "in the presence of 24 bishops." The box, now opened, without the required number of bishops, contains only worthless trash.

NO TRACE OF SEVEN MISSING FLYERS FOUND

QUIT TOMORROW

Prayers for Victims Offered in San Francisco Churches.

HONOLULU, Aug. 22.—Not a ray of hope for the missing Dole flyers had resulted today from the most thorough canvassing of Hawaiian waters ever made. The fine-comb search by the navy, by commercial steamers and by island fishing boats has so far been in vain.

Air planes and submarines, combing the waves far out from the islands, found not even a fragment of wreckage to betray the fate of the Golden Eagle, the Miss Doran, and their five pasengers. The Dallas Spirit, the third missing plane is believed to sunk without leaving any traces in this region.

They pointed out that the service given by the radio beacon in directing aircraft had been proved to be valuable. Art Goebel of the Woolaroc, the winning plane, was helped to steer true to his mark all the way across by the radio beacon. The Dole flight also demonstrated the necessity of radio equipment, the local airmen asserted. Hereafter, they hoped, no pilot will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight without both a sending and a receiving set.

Hunt Ends Tomorrow.

Hope that the seven missing Hawaiian flyers are still alive wanted to its lowest ebb today. The Dole planes, Miss Doran and Golden Eagle, were last seen six days ago by lighthouse keepers on the desolate Farollones, 30 miles off the Golden Gate.

The Dallas Spirit, piloted by "Lone Star Bill" Erwin and guided by Alvin Eichwald, disappeared into the void last Friday night. Erwin's radio told of a tailspin and then whined into silence. Airmen fear he nose-dived into the sea and sank beneath the surface. His plane was heavily laden for a 32-hour flight to Hawaii to search for Auggy Pedlar, Vilas Knope, and

The resolutions were signed by a committee consisting of Ralph Lowe, John Cook, I. Ciccarelli, James Babb, Ross Caruso, Nick Trua, John Caruso, Roy Mahoney, Pete Papendry and Alvin Cullen.

The legislative appropriation was made because of permanent physical injuries sustained by young Waddell as a result it was claimed of vaccination at Camp Perry in 1921 while a member of the Ohio national guard.

Hallman wrote Donahey last week that he would confer with the Governor Tuesday.

LAWYERS FIGHT TO "LAST DITCH" TO SECURE STAY OF EXECUTION

Governor Fuller Urged to Grant Another Respite.

STONE REFUSES

Men Will Die Shortly After Midnight Unless Executive Acts.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The question of life or death for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was put squarely up to Governor Alvan T. Fuller again today—a bare 12 hours before the condemned radicals were due to march to the electric chair at midnight.

Case Before Supreme Court.

Counsel for the two men appeared at the state house at noon and formally petitioned the governor to grant another respite on the ground that the case is now in litigation in the supreme court of the United States. This action by counsel followed swiftly in the heels of the formal docketing of the case in Washington this morning. They have applied for a writ of certorari from the nation's highest tribunal.

The case was thrown back on Governor Fuller's shoulders by Attorneys Michael A. Musmanno and Elias Field. They presented to Governor Fuller's secretary formal letters, requesting the respite and setting forth that it would be unfair and unjust to execute the two men while their case is actually in litigation before the supreme court at Washington.

Stone Refuses To Intercede.

STONINGTON, Me., Aug. 22.—Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States supreme court, today refused to issue a stay of execution for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Justice Stone's refusal to intercede was made to Arthur D. Hill, chief of defense counsel, who made a flying and desperate dash by water to the justice's summer home at Isle au Haut, 20 miles off the Maine coast. Hill did not make any statement other than to say that his mission had failed, and Justice Stone made none.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, MONDAY, AUGUST 22, 1927.

Does Double Duty

THE Easy's three Vacuum Cups move up and down sixty times a minute, flushing soap and water through the fabric by air pressure and suction. They wash as thoroughly and gently as your own careful hands.

For drying clothes, ready for the line, simply move a lever and in three minutes a whole eight-sheet load of clothes is evenly damp, ready to hang out. The dryer does its work more thoroughly than a wringer, and there is no danger of crushing your fingers. Clothes are dried evenly damp, and even thick hems will not drip. Buttons are safe; and ironing is easier, for no deep wrinkles are squeezed in by the Easy dryer.

No Water to Empty

The new Easy handles all of the water electrically, you don't have to lift heavy pails of water when you are through washing.

Another great convenience is the gas heater beneath the Easy washing tub. Water is kept hot throughout the longest washing, and clothes can be sterilized right in the Easy tub.

Many Other Features

It's no trouble or mess to oil the Easy, it's automatically done. Gear-driven, no leather belts to slip or break. Automatic starting and stopping switch prevents fuses from blowing. Runs quietly and smoothly. Round tubs — sanitary, easy to clean. Lasts for years and years.

FREE!

We will do your next washing in your own home free of charge, and without obligation to you. Simply phone us for an appointment and an Easy will be in your home at the time you set.

Also made with gasoline motor, for homes without electricity.

Does Double Duty

THE Easy's three Vacuum Cups move up and down sixty times a minute, flushing soap and water through the fabric by air pressure and suction. They wash as thoroughly and gently as your own careful hands.

For drying clothes, ready for the line, simply move a lever and in three minutes a whole eight-sheet load of clothes is evenly damp, ready to hang out. The dryer does its work more thoroughly than a wringer, and there is no danger of crushing your fingers. Clothes are dried evenly damp, and even thick hems will not drip. Buttons are safe; and ironing is easier, for no deep wrinkles are squeezed in by the Easy dryer.

No Water to Empty

The new Easy handles all of the water electrically, you don't have to lift heavy pails of water when you are through washing.

Another great convenience is the gas heater beneath the Easy washing tub. Water is kept hot throughout the longest washing, and clothes can be sterilized right in the Easy tub.

Many Other Features

It's no trouble or mess to oil the Easy, it's automatically done. Gear-driven, no leather belts to slip or break. Automatic starting and stopping switch prevents fuses from blowing. Runs quietly and smoothly. Round tubs — sanitary, easy to clean. Lasts for years and years.

THE LADY CALLED FATE

BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS. ©1927 CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

Wong, Chinese cook, tells Moore to take Ruth away soon. John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting to take them. Then Clench is murdered and Henshaw tries to fasten the murder on John.

John hears the sound of a motor then Ruth's cry. He finds Wong lying beside the auto, stabbed to death.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

John Moore straightened the limbs and closed the staring eyes.

"All right, Wong" he said, monotonously, "all right. Do you hear? Who did it? Ah, I thought so—." He put his fingers in a slit beneath the left sleeve of Wong's loose coat. When he drew them out again they were wet. "I thought so. All right. All right."

Wong's face was set in a look of ineffable repose; as if his spirit had been withdrawn from his body for a thousand years. Yet John Moore continued to address him as if he were present. And, perhaps, he was. Perhaps Wong knew that those words John uttered were flood waters seeping through the dam of his modern civilization and that presently the dam would go out.

"I'll do it, Wong. I'll find them. Wait here. I'll find her."

John stood up and faced about.

Between him and the house were the three he sought: Roderiguez, Manuel and Henshaw.

Henshaw stood a little in front of the other two and between them. In the glare of the car lamps his face seemed queerly drawn and puckered, the blinking eyes were still.

"You have found another dead man, Mr. Moore?" drawled Henshaw.

"It was you all the time!" said John Moore, with dry lips. "Where is the knife?"

"Another knife?" asked Henshaw and smiled.

At that smile John Moore swayed a little on his feet. "And Miss Henshaw—where is she?"

Henshaw, watching him, let his smile show for the sneer it was. "You are a bit squeamish. Take it easy, Mr. Moore. What's a Ching more or less between friends?"

He could not see John's face for John stood with his back to the head lights; he saw only that swaying body; and he failed to guess that John swayed in the flood tide of anger—until it was too late.

John Moore's two guns spat fire. Roderiguez and Manuel dropped their right hands; their guns fell to the ground; and the air was filled with broken Spanish curses.

But John's eyes were upon Mr. Henshaw. "You understand," he said. "I can shoot like that. I will kill them—or you like that—if you hesitate. Hold your hands over your head." He threw Henshaw's gun to the ground with the other two. "Take me to Miss Henshaw. Roderiguez, put up your left hand and lead the way; Manuel next—put up your left hand; now Henshaw, go on. Through the kitchen door, Roderiguez; one at a time, slowly. Halt!"

The three halted on the wide threshold of the kitchen door. The glare of the car lamps just reached it. "Roderiguez, light a lamp before I count twenty or I'll break your other arm."

"Carry it," ordered John. "If you drop it, it will be the last thing you ever do. Lead the way."

Mr. Henshaw spoke. "She is upstairs," he said calmly. "In her own room."

They filed through the swinging door into the dining room; down its length and through a door in the far end. In this room Roderiguez turned to his left and crossed to a door which stood open.

"Where does that go to?" asked John.

"To the hall," answered Roderiguez sullenly.

"All right."

They passed into the small square passage from which a narrow spiral stairway mounted upward into the tower above it.

"Halt!" They all stood still. "Henshaw, do you feel my gun under your ribs? If you say Miss Henshaw is up stairs we will go up. If she isn't up there I'll kill you for trying to ambuscade me on the stairway. And I won't wait to be any too darned sure of that. I'l take no chances. I have your number!"

Henshaw's face twisted slowly about over his shoulder towards John. The lamp light fell down upon it. A face lowering and still; the features blurred nad smudged by the mark of evil quivering behind them.

"I'll enjoy killing you," said John Moore. "Do we go upstairs?"

Henshaw faced forward again. "My room," he said to Roderiguez.

"Then we will have to go back," said Roderiguez to John.

"All right."

"This is his room," he said.

"Henshaw, is she in there? If you lie to me—."

"Yes, she is there. Wait!"

"No! Rederiguez, open that door!"

"I cannot—with the lamp. My other hand—"

"Put the lamp on the mantel. Keep your hand up! Now, rap on the door."

Roderiguez knocked. There was no answer.

John Moore's voice ground through the silence. "Henshaw, if you have hurt that girl, you'll die when I'm through with you."

John had forgotten Roderiguez but it was the big Mexican who cried, "Dios! You think I let him hurt her? NO!"

John Moore stared at him dazedly. And this was the man—. "Then open the door," he commanded.

Roderiguez turned the knob but the door did not open. "It is locked!" he said.

"Henshaw! Where is the key?"

Henshaw turned toward John again. "She has locked it, inside," he said. John could see that he was struggling to recompose his face into a mask of decency.

"Miss Henshaw!" called John, "Miss Henshaw, are you there? This is John Moore speaking."

And then beyond the door the girl's voice, hoarse and low, as if dragged out of her against her will: "I am here."

"Are you hurt?"

Again her slow voice: "No—not—hurt."

"My god!" raged John. "what have you done to her?"

"She is not hurt," blazed Roderiguez.

"Yes."

"Then open it. Wait! Roderiguez, Manuel and your uncle are out here. I am covering them with my guns. If they attempt to approach you it will be to use you as a shield and I will kill them. You are to open the door and step into this room and then stand still where you are. Do you understand?"

"Yes."

COMEDY PLAY AT THE STRAND

"Pleasure Before Business" Here for Two day Showing.

When a picture can make you laugh and forget the petty annoyances of the day—then it is good entertainment. And "good entertainment" is the verdict of this reviewer on "Pleasure Before Business," Columbia's newest Jewish-Irish comedy, which opens at the Strand theatre today.

Starting with a locale new to a story with a Jewish-Irish background, Director Frank R. Strayer has evolved a novel twist to the pleasure hunting of a humble Jewish cigar manufacturer that makes for many humorous situations.

Max Davidson as the cigar man who seeks pleasure under orders, and carries his family along on his search, gives a delightful characterization that is as humorous as it is human. Rosa Rosanova is a sympathetic mother, and Virginia Browne Faire proves convincing as the charming daughter. Pat OMalley lends strength and sincerity to the role of Dr. Burke, while Lester Bernard as the cautious fiance, does his shade in attracting the laughs.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

DRIVE SAFELY.

One hundred and sixteen persons lost their lives in the Johnstown flood. When the Iroquois theater in Chicago burned, 575 were killed. Eleven hundred and nienty-eight perished when the Lusitania was sunk, and 1,517 went down with the Titanic. These catastrophies cover a number of years, but in the same length of time more Americans have been killed by motor cars. Auto accidents don't "just happen." They have plain and simple causes. Most all of them are caused by plain and simple carelessness.

THERE'S ALWAYS OPPORTUNITY.

The commonest cry of youth entering the world of affairs is for "opportunity." So many young men excuse themselves for not getting ahead on the ground that there is no opportunity.

Wherever there is a job there is opportunity. Major General R. H. Allen, who became chief of infantry in the United States army, rose from the ranks of enlisted men. And the army is not generally considered a place of great opportunity for men who are not officers.

It's not the lack of opportunity—it's not knowing what to do with it that makes failure.

WHAT IS RADICAL?

Some time ago a speaker before the Society of Mayflower Descendants condemned "radicalism." Most of us use that word loosely. We see red when somebody says "radical." A thing isn't necessarily bad because it is radical. The very men and women who came to America on the Mayflower were certainly radicals. The patriot army at Bunker Hill was made up entirely of radicals. Columbus, Galileo, Cromwell, Lincoln, and a glorious host of others were radicals. It depends on what kind of radical we are talking about. Probably few of use are able to judge good ones from bad ones.

Very often a redical is simply a man another radical does not like.

WHO IS WHO?

Speaking of radicals, the excited young man on the soapbox at the street corner, who tells us the government is all wrong is what we call a "red." He is "again the government." The rich man who hates the Eighteenth amendment and won't obey it, and keeps liquor in his cellar is also against the government.

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

Wong, Chinese cook, tells Moore to take Ruth away soon. John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting to take them. Then Clench is murdered and Henshaw tries to fasten the murder on John.

John hears the sound of a motor then Ruth's cry. He finds Wong lying beside the auto, stabbed to death.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

John Moore straightened the limbs and closed the staring eyes.

"All right, Wong" he said, monotonously, "all right. Do you hear? Who did it? Ah, I thought so—." He put his fingers in a slit beneath the left sleeve of Wong's loose coat. When he drew them out again they were wet. "I thought so. All right. All right."

Wong's face was set in a look of ineffable repose; as if his spirit had been withdrawn from his body for a thousand years. Yet John Moore continued to address him as if he were present. And, perhaps, he was. Perhaps Wong knew that those words John uttered were flood waters seeping through the dam of his modern civilization and that presently the dam would go out.

"I'll do it, Wong. I'll find them. Wait here. I'll find her."

John stood up and faced about.

Between him and the house were the three he sought: Roderiguez, Manuel and Henshaw.

Henshaw stood a little in front of the other two and between them. In the glare of the car lamps his face seemed queerly drawn and puckered, the blinking eyes were still.

"You have found another dead man, Mr. Moore?" drawled Henshaw.

"It was you all the time!" said John Moore, with dry lips. "Where is the knife?"

"Another knife?" asked Henshaw and smiled.

Henshaw, watching him, let his smile show for the sneer it was. "You are a bit squeamish. Take it easy, Mr. Moore. What's a Ching more or less between friends?"

He could not see John's face for John stood with his back to the headlights; he saw only that swaying body; and he failed to guess that John swayed in the flood tide of anger—until it was too late.

John Moore's two guns spat fire. Roderiguez and Manuel dropped their right hands; their guns fell to the ground; and the air was filled with broken Spanish curses.

But John's eyes were upon Mr. Henshaw. "You understand," he said. "I can shoot like that. I will kill them—or you like that—if you hesitate. Hold your hands over your head." He threw Henshaw's gun to the ground with the other two. "Take me to Miss Henshaw. Roderiguez, put up your left hand and lead the way; Manuel next—put up your left hand; now Henshaw, go on. Through the kitchen door, Roderiguez; one at a time, slowly. Halt!"

The three halted on the wide threshold of the kitchen door. The glare of the car lamps just reached it.

"Carry it," ordered John. "If you drop it, it will be the last thing you ever do. Lead the way."

Mr. Henshaw spoke. "She is upstairs," he said calmly. "In her own room."

They filed through the swinging door into the dining room; down its length and through a door in the far end. In this room Roderiguez turned to his left and crossed to a door which stood open.

"Where does that go to?" asked John.

"To the hall," answered Roderiguez sullenly.

They passed into the small square passage from which a narrow spiral stairway mounted upward into the tower above it.

"Halt!" They all stood still. "Henshaw, do you feel my gun under your ribs? If you say Miss Henshaw is up stairs we will go up. If she isn't up there I'll kill you for trying to ambuscade me on the stairway. And I won't wait to be any too darned sure of that. I'll take no chances. I have your number!"

Henshaw's face twisted slowly about over his shoulder towards John. The lamp light fell down upon it. A face lowering and still; the features blurred nad smudged by the mark of evil quivering behind them.

"I'll enjoy killing you," said John Moore. "Do we go upstairs?"

Henshaw faced forward again. "My room," he said to Roderiguez.

"Then we will have to go back," said Roderiguez to John.

"All right."

"This is his room," he said.

"Henshaw, is she in there? If you lie to me—."

"Yes, she is there. Wait!"

"No! Rederiguez, open that door!"

"I cannot—with the lamp. My other hand—"

"Put the lamp on the mantel. Keep your hand up! Now, rap on the door."

Roderiguez knocked. There was no answer.

John Moore's voice ground through the silence. "Henshaw, if you have hurt that girl, you'll die when I'm through with you."

John had forgotten Roderiguez but it was the big Mexican who cried, "Dios! You think I let him hurt her? NO!"

John Moore stared at him dazedly. And this was the man— "Then open the door," he commanded.

Roderiguez turned the knob but the door did not open. "It is locked!" he said.

"Henshaw! Where is the key?"

Henshaw turned toward John again. "She has locked it, inside," he said. John could see that he was struggling to recompose his face into a mask of decency.

"Miss Henshaw!" called John. "Miss Henshaw, are you there? This is John Moore speaking."

And then beyond the door the girl's voice, hoarse and low, as if dragged out of her against her will: "I am here."

"Are you hurt?"

Again her slow voice: "No—not—hurt."

"My god!" raged John. "what have you done to her?"

"She is not hurt," blazed Roderiguez.

"Yes."

"Then open it. Wait! Roderiguez, Manuel and your uncle are out here. I am covering them with my guns. If they attempt to approach you it will be to use you as a shield and I will kill them. You are to open the door and step into this room and then stand still where you are. Do you understand?"

"Yes."

COMEDY PLAY AT THE STRAND

"Pleasure Before Business" Here for Two day Showing.

When a picture can make you laugh and forget the petty annoyances of the day—then it is good entertainment. And "good entertainment" is the verdict of this reviewer on "Pleasure Before Business," Columbia's newest Jewish-Irish comedy, which opens at the Strand theatre today.

Starting with a locale new to a story with a Jewish-Irish background, Director Frank R. Strayer has evolved a novel twist to the pleasure hunting of a humble Jewish cigar manufacturer that makes for many humorous situations.

Max Davidson as the cigar man who seeks pleasure under orders, and carries his family along on his search, gives a delightful characterization that is as humorous as it is human. Rosa Rosanova is a sympathetic mother, and Virginia Browne Faire proves convincing as the charming daughter. Pat OMalley lends strength and sincerity to the role of Dr. Burke, while Lester Bernard as the cautious fiance, does his shade in attracting the laughs.

The Way of the World

DRIVE SAFELY.

One hundred and sixteen persons lost their lives in the Johnstown flood. When the Iroquois theater in Chicago burned, 575 were killed. Eleven hundred and ninty-eight perished when the Lusitania was sunk, and 1,517 went down with the Titanic. These catastrophies cover a number of years, but in the same length of time more Americans have been killed by motor cars. Auto accidents don't "just happen." They have plain and simple causes. Most all of them are caused by plain and simple carelessness.

THERE'S ALWAYS OPPORTUNITY.

The commonest cry of youth entering the world of affairs is for "opportunity." So many young men excuse themselves for not getting ahead on the ground that there is no opportunity.

Wherever there is a job there is opportunity. Major General R. H. Allen, who became chief of infantry in the United States army, rose from the ranks of enlisted men. And the army is not generally considered a place of great opportunity for men who are not officers.

It's not the lack of opportunity—it's not knowing what to do with it that makes failure.

WHAT IS RADICAL?

Some time ago a speaker before the Society of Mayflower Descendants condemned "radicalism." Most of us use that word loosely. We see red when somebody says "radical." A thing isn't necessarily bad because it is radical. The very men and women who came to America on the Mayflower were certainly radicals. The patriot army at Bunker Hill was made up entirely of radicals. Columbus, Galileo, Cromwell, Lincoln, and a glorious host of others were radicals. It depends on what kind of radical we are talking about. Probably few of use are able to judge good ones from bad ones.

Very often a redical is simply a man another radical does not like.

WHO IS WHO?

Speaking of radicals, the excited young man on the soapbox at the street corner, who tells us the government is all wrong is what we call a "red." He is "again the government." The rich man who hates the Eighteenth amendment and won't obey it, and keeps liquor in his cellar is also against the government.

How Many Homes

"My wants are few and simple," remarks a citizen accused of lavish tastes because he recently acquired a summer home. "All I want is enough money to live where I want to, when I want to. And all that means is a summer home in the North, a winter home in the South and a comfortable dwelling in my home town for the rest of the time.

"You see, I'd be willing to have one real home out of the three, and live there in the spring and fall, but I'd want to be equally at home in all of the three."

This attitude is probably more general than one would suspect. Look at the hundreds of thousands of northern folk who have bought winter homes, or home sites, in Florida, southern California and other southern regions, and those who want to do likewise. Look at those who are now, by an equally natural process, looking for northern summer somes. The two classes may eventually merge into one.

With the migrating habit once started, who knows where it will end? Talk about the vanishing "saturation point" of automobiles! What is the saturation point of family residences?

No Fun On The Farm

The most depressing thing about farm life, says an observant school superintendent, is not the financial situation but the social situation.

It need not be so bad as it is. "Many a youth lives in a very Eden without knowing it." County people, he declares, do not seem to know how to play. Their greatest poverty is "recreational poverty." The children lack normal play, the young people lack social contacts and interesting, wholesome amusement. There is no loisure program for the adults.

So the country youths, he argues, must be taught to play. They must also be taught appreciation of nature and appreciation of good literature. Social enjoyments, literary enjoyments, outdoor enjoyments, all are within their reach.

There is much truth, undoubtedly, in this view. It has not always been so. Life need not be all labor, surely, even for a farmer. If the mental and social horizon can be widedened, there will be less farm discontent and less drift to the cities.

American Opera Singers

The manager of the Chicago Civic Opera company, on his return from Europe the other day, announced that while he was abroad he had engaged two dintinguished young singers for the coming season. This is quite a normal thing for an opera manager to do. The unusual feature of the case is the fact that both the singers are Americans.

Chase Baromo Sikes, known while singing with the La Scala opera in Milan as Cesarce Baromeo, is a native of Michigan and a graduate of the University of Michigan. The other American singer is Leone Kruse, also a native of Michigan.

American opera companies have an ever-lasting list of native singers on their rolls. Some, like Marion Talley, have achieved their first great fame in their native land. Others, like the two booked in Europe this summer, have been first recognized abroad and have had several successful seasons on foreign stages before singing in America.

In either case their ability has been well proven and has helped to advance America's prestige in the realm of music. Apparently American soil and climate are not inimical to the birth of fine voices or to their artistic development.

Noise

Chicago, always known as a noisy city, has its pre-eminence proved. Scientific tests conducted by acoustic engineers with the best modern instrumental equipment show that Chicago is the noisiest city in the world. And it would be just like Chicago to start bragging about that.

Chicago, however, will be rendered thoughtful by the statement of those engineers that the noise is costing the city more than $5,000,000 a year—which is all it costs London, a much larger city.

Noise is inefficient, because it increases fatigue, decreases speed and errors. So Chicago, which is for efficiency above everything else, will probably take up noiselessness in a serious way one of these days, and set out to become the quietest city on earth.

Little old New York can't be so shallow and frivolous after all, when they have a hot old argument there as to the merits of Beethoven's ninth symphony.

It doesn't necessarily do aviation any good if men, women and children faint all over the place in their eagerness to see Lindbergh.

The fellow who has never been in a sailboat is usually "crazy to go sailing," and crazier when he goes.

Britishers are funny about royalty. Canadians are almost as much agog over the visit of the Prince of Wales as Americans would be.

Often, too, a hop is a flop.

Maybe when Aimee McPherson was kidnapped that time, the kidnapers were after that $100,000 that she and Mother Kennedy have divided between them.

Mickey (Himself) McGuire— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and Frank Shutts telephoned asking how to pronounce "po-lop-ony" and I gave a foolish pronunciation right off, nor did I figure out until hours afterward he had tricked me with polo-pony. So at my stint and Jim Tully came with an autographed copy of his new book, "Circus Parade."

In the afternoon with Archie Andrews to see the yacht he purchased from Henry Ford, a neat barque, and to a tea where I talked with an actress full of grave airs and high pretensions and quite bored with the waggishness of several guests.

To a dinner where they served a venison pasty and a coal black pudding, the best I ever ate and then home where Lee Ettleson and Leo Marsh, the scriveners, arrived and we sat up sipping grape juice and talking big until dawn. So to bed.

Underneath the New York Central's high-spun tracks is the rabble of a push cart market. Everything is on display from cheap calico to shoddy furs. Housewives come with baskets and pinched purses to fill their larders while a few blocks south imported servants order without asking prices.

Upper Park Avenue is as jostling as lower avenue is richly sedate. In every side street is the shout of funny little figures with funny little brogues dancing to street pianos. Itinerant tradesmen sing a hundred cries.

Young toughs lounge on corners. Blank walls are chalked with unprintable challenges. Diapered babies crawl perilously about fire escapes and uncurtained windows reveal the bleak squalor of cramped thread-bare flats. No street offers such a sharp contrast of wealth and poverty.

Irvin Cobb walking north on Park Avenue one afternoon saw a motley crowd debouching from a scarred frame building. "The pool hall must be letting out," he observed.

Harlem's Black Belt, a little northward, continues to display a growing opulence. New stores with glittering fronts, dot Lexon Avenue. Huge electric signs are almost as gaudy as those along Broadway. In almost every block between 125th and 140th streets are cellar cabarets filling nightly with downtown slummers.

"The Row" is also the street housing Florence Mills and others of her race who have prospered on the stage. Two successful novelists live there, also a poet and a concert singer. Expensive automobiles are parked at the curb and dusky damsels promenade with pedigreed pups.

Several novels and magazine articles recently have told of well-known white people who are frequent visitors at musicales, literary readings and parties given along The Row.

It is told there is a millionaire New Yorker who has his own private daily newspaper which is placed on his breakfast table every morning. Only one copy is printed. He is a busy man and the paper is printed to give him the gist of the news, summarizing events that may have an especial interest for him.

That's the dream of every reporter! To have his own paper and print just what he wants to write as he writes it. But most of us can't even get out a handbill.

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Swiss Cooperatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The Swiss people, in addition to yodeling, watch-making, and chasing the playful chamois, go in for cooperative marketing, both retailing and wholesaling, and have found it highly profitable, according to a recent consular report from Basel. The General Cooperative Society which has its headquarters there has paid a dividend of less than 6 per cent, while its dividend rate has been as high as 14 per cent. At the same time a substantial reserve fund has been created.

Indirectly, the United States is responsible for this Swiss cooperative. In 1865 the ribbon factories of Basel were forced to shut down because the Civil War in this country had cut off the American demand for their products. That was the big end of their business. The plan of general cooperative society was thereupon resorted to as the best means of furnishing cheap food and other necessities to the unemployed.

Cooperation was at the time by no means an experiment with the Swiss people. For more than a century attempts had been made to organize to purchase foodstuffs and to encourage savings. The Helvetical Society was formed in 1761 and the Society for the Development and Encouragement of Public Welfare in 1777. From 1846 to 1860 a number of societies were formed by well-to-do citizens to supply corn and bread to the poor at low prices, and the most important of these also featured a savings bank and sick benefit fund.

Thus the way had been paved for the General Cooperative Society when the need for it arose in 1865. It was modeled after the Rochdale Society, the famous English cooperative. Membership was open to all classes of the people and earnings were distributed to members in proportion to their patronage—dividends upon the money spent rather than the money invested with the Society—after setting aside each year 10 per cent for a reserve fund.

Growth Both Rapid and Sound.

The Society started business with one store and a membership of 212. By the end of 1866 three more stores and a bakery had been added, the membership was 555, and the annual turnover was 181,021 francs. Ten years later there were 15 stores and 2333 members and the volume of business had grown proportionately.

The greatest gain was made during the period from 1886 to 1906, when the number of stores increased from 20 to 87, the number of members from 5412 to 28,538, and the annual turnover from 2,347,233 francs to 16,408,008 francs. Last year there were 188 stores with 43,158 members, the volume of business was in excess of 53,000,000 francs, an 8 per cent dividend was paid, and the reserve fund was 3,214,785 francs. These francs, by the way, are all of a par value of 19.3 cents.

Opposition from retail dealers and dissension within the ranks of the members made the early years of the Society difficult, it is stated, but a reorganization in 1869 resulted in rapid expansion and since 1885 the history of the organization has been one of uninterrupted progress.

Of the retail establishments owned and operated by the Society last year, 140 were grocery stores, 34 were butcher shops, 10 were shoe stores, 1 was a department store, and 3 were devoted to household furnishings. Real estate owned was valued at almost $3,000,000.

The largest item in the turnover last year was groceries, $2,742,930. Dairy products sold amounted to $2,351,180, while the butcher shops did a business of $1,829,633. Incidentally, it may be pointed out, the Society did a business of almost three-fourths of a million dollars in wine and beer. Seventy per cent of the total sales were made to members and the remainder to non-members who are encouraged to patronize the stores. Net earnings for the year amounted to $813,821, of which $574,286 went in rebates to members and $202,863 was set aside for amortizations and endowments. The Society now operates five dairy farms, three of which it owns and the other two it leases. Last year it handled 19,600,000 quarts of milk, 266,240 bottles of sterilized milk, 167,520 bottles of cream, 1,707,000 pounds of butter, and 725,000 pounds of cheese.

Encouragement of savings is one of the main tenets of the Society and at the end of last year it carried on its books 16539 individual accounts, representing deposits of $2,183,550. Interests at the rate of 4½ per cent is paid on the savings accounts.

Marketing Cooperatives.

In contrast with this Society, most of the successful cooperatives in the United States are marketing instead of retail organizations, their business covering almost every kind of agricultural product. A grain exchange at Lansing, Mich., did a business of $8,000,000 during the last fiscal year and in 1926 poultry products valued at more than $40,000,000 were marketed by a 67 farmer-owned associations that served 55,000 farmers. Egg sales amounted to $30,000,000, live poultry sales were $4,850,000 and dressed poultry sales $6,500,000. The associations handling eggs sold more than 90,000,000 dozens, 68 per cent of this volume of business being done by 14 associations located in the Pacific Coast States. A single California cooperative handled 28 per cent of the total quantity, while one in the State of Washington handled 24 per cent of the total. Missouri with 9 cooperatives handled about 20 per cent of the total quantity of eggs marketed.

Success in the cooperative marketing of cotton is shown in the record made by the North Carolina Association which on September 1 will distribute almost $500,000 of its reserve fund among its members. This reserve represents 1 per cent deductions from the sales value of the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops marketed through the association. The deduction in connection with the 1922 crop has already been returned and that from the 1926 crop will be refunded next March. The per-bale cost of marketing has been reduced in five years from $8.10 to $4.30, and it is expected that as a result of economies recently instituted the forthcoming crop will be handled at even smaller cost.

Among other achievements claimed by the management is a reduction in interest rate on money borrowed for advances to the growers from 6 per cent to 4½ per cent, a reduction in storage and insurance charges from 50 cents to 35c a bale, the institution of the practice of paying a premium on cotton grading better than middling and of longer staple than ⅞ of an inch, and the development of a direct-to-mill and export business which includes 72 per cent of the cotton handled by the association.

One of the newest cooperatives is an association recently formed in the State of Washington for the marketing of honey. Beekeepers of two counties have been enrolled and it is expected that the association will begin business with approximately 400 tons of honey to market. That amount of honey, it is estimated, will suffice for about 75,000,000 biscuits.

How Many Homes

"My wants are few and simple," remarks a citizen accused of lavish tastes because he recently acquired a summer home. "All I want is enough money to live where I want to, when I want to. And all that means is a summer home in the North, a winter home in the South and a comfortable dwelling in my home town for the rest of the time.

"You see, I'd be willing to have one real home out of the three, and live there in the spring and fall, but I'd want to be equally at home in all of the three."

This attitude is probably more general than one would suspect. Look at the hundreds of thousands of northern folk who have bought winter homes, or home sites, in Florida, southern California and other southern regions, and those who want to do likewise. Look at those who are now, by an equally natural process, looking for northern summer somes. The two classes may eventually merge into one.

With the migrating habit once started, who knows where it will end? Talk about the vanishing "saturation point" of automobiles! What is the saturation point of family residences?

No Fun On The Farm

The most depressing thing about farm life, says an observant school superintendent, is not the financial situation but the social situation.

It need not be so bad as it is. "Many a youth lives in a very Eden without knowing it." County people, he declares, do not seem to know how to play. Their greatest poverty is "recreational poverty." The children lack normal play, the young people lack social contacts and interesting, wholesome amusement. There is no loisure program for the adults.

So the country youths, he argues, must be taught to play. They must also be taught appreciation of nature and appreciation of good literature. Social enjoyments, literary enjoyments, outdoor enjoyments, all are within their reach.

There is much truth, undoubtedly, in this view. It has not always been so. Life need not be all labor, surely, even for a farmer. If the mental and social horizon can be widedened, there will be less farm discontent and less drift to the cities.

American Opera Singers

The manager of the Chicago Civic Opera company, on his return from Europe the other day, announced that while he was abroad he had engaged two dintinguished young singers for the coming season. This is quite a normal thing for an opera manager to do. The unusual feature of the case is the fact that both the singers are Americans.

Chase Baromo Sikes, known while singing with the La Scala opera in Milan as Cesarce Baromeo, is a native of Michigan and a graduate of the University of Michigan. The other American singer is Leone Kruse, also a native of Michigan.

American opera companies have an ever-lasting list of native singers on their rolls. Some, like Marion Talley, have achieved their first great fame in their native land. Others, like the two booked in Europe this summer, have been first recognized abroad and have had several successful seasons on foreign stages before singing in America.

In either case their ability has been well proven and has helped to advance America's prestige in the realm of music. Apparently American soil and climate are not inimical to the birth of fine voices or to their artistic development.

Noise

Chicago, always known as a noisy city, has its pre-eminence proved. Scientific tests conducted by acoustic engineers with the best modern instrumental equipment show that Chicago is the noisiest city in the world. And it would be just like Chicago to start bragging about that.

Chicago, however, will be rendered thoughtful by the statement of those engineers that the noise is costing the city more than $5,000,000 a year—which is all it costs London, a much larger city.

Noise is inefficient, because it increases fatigue, decreases speed and errors. So Chicago, which is for efficiency above everything else, will probably take up noiselessness in a serious way one of these days, and set out to become the quietest city on earth.

Little old New York can't be so shallow and frivolous after all, when they have a hot old argument there as to the merits of Beethoven's ninth symphony.

It doesn't necessarily do aviation any good if men, women and children faint all over the place in their eagerness to see Lindbergh.

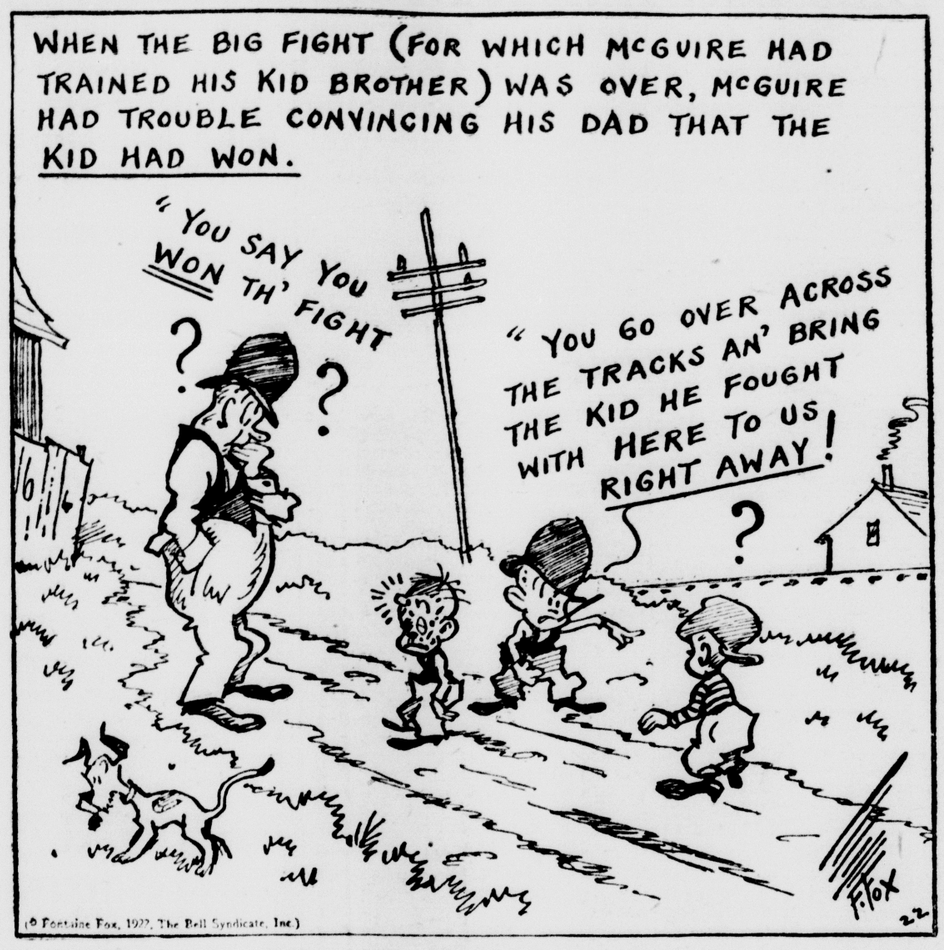
The fellow who has never been in a sailboat is usually "crazy to go sailing," and crazier when he goes.

Britishers are funny about royalty. Canadians are almost as much agog over the visit of the Prince of Wales as Americans would be.

Often, too, a hop is a flop.

Maybe when Aimee McPherson was kidnapped that time, the kidnapers were after that $100,000 that she and Mother Kennedy have divided between them.

Mickey (Himself) McGuire— By Fontaine Fox



NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and Frank Shutts telephoned asking how to pronounce "po-lop-ony" and I gave a foolish pronunciation right off, nor did I figure out until hours afterward he had tricked me with polo-pony. So at my stint and Jim Tully came with an autographed copy of his new book, "Circus Parade."

In the afternoon with Archie Andrews to see the yacht he purchased from Henry Ford, a neat barque, and to a tea where I talked with an actress full of grave airs and high pretensions and quite bored with the waggishness of several guests.

To a dinner where they served a venison pasty and a coal black pudding, the best I ever ate and then home where Lee Ettleson and Leo Marsh, the scriveners, arrived and we sat up sipping grape juice and talking big until dawn. So to bed.

Park Avenue spreads a magnificent apartment house panorama northward and becomes abruptly a seething Ghetto. Old red brick buildings latticed with fire escapes greet the eye. Windows are filled with vinegar faces and sidewalks are bulging with tenement children.

Underneath the New York Central's high-spun tracks is the rabble of a push cart market. Everything is on display from cheap calico to shoddy furs. Housewives come with baskets and pinched purses to fill their larders while a few blocks south imported servants order without asking prices.

Upper Park Avenue is as jostling as lower avenue is richly sedate. In every side street is the shout of funny little figures with funny little brogues dancing to street pianos. Itinerant tradesmen sing a hundred cries.

Young toughs lounge on corners. Blank walls are chalked with unprintable challenges. Diapered babies crawl perilously about fire escapes and uncurtained windows reveal the bleak squalor of cramped thread-bare flats. No street offers such a sharp contrast of wealth and poverty.

Irvin Cobb walking north on Park Avenue one afternoon saw a motley crowd debouching from a scarred frame building. "The pool hall must be letting out," he observed.

Harlem's Black Belt, a little northward, continues to display a growing opulence. New stores with glittering fronts, dot Lexon Avenue. Huge electric signs are almost as gaudy as those along Broadway. In almost every block between 125th and 140th streets are cellar cabarets filling nightly with downtown slummers.

"The Row" is also the street housing Florence Mills and others of her race who have prospered on the stage. Two successful novelists live there, also a poet and a concert singer. Expensive automobiles are parked at the curb and dusky damsels promenade with pedigreed pups.

Several novels and magazine articles recently have told of well-known white people who are frequent visitors at musicales, literary readings and parties given along The Row.

It is told there is a millionaire New Yorker who has his own private daily newspaper which is placed on his breakfast table every morning. Only one copy is printed. He is a busy man and the paper is printed to give him the gist of the news, summarizing events that may have an especial interest for him.

That's the dream of every reporter! To have his own paper and print just what he wants to write as he writes it. But most of us can't even get out a handbill.

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Swiss Cooperatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The Swiss people, in addition to yodeling, watch-making, and chasing the playful chamois, go in for cooperative marketing, both retailing and wholesaling, and have found it highly profitable, according to a recent consular report from Basel. The General Cooperative Society which has its headquarters there has paid a dividend of less than 6 per cent, while its dividend rate has been as high as 14 per cent. At the same time a substantial reserve fund has been created.

Indirectly, the United States is responsible for this Swiss cooperative. In 1865 the ribbon factories of Basel were forced to shut down because the Civil War in this country had cut off the American demand for their products. That was the big end of their business. The plan of general cooperative society was thereupon resorted to as the best means of furnishing cheap food and other necessities to the unemployed.

Cooperation was at the time by no means an experiment with the Swiss people. For more than a century attempts had been made to organize to purchase foodstuffs and to encourage savings. The Helvetical Society was formed in 1761 and the Society for the Development and Encouragement of Public Welfare in 1777. From 1846 to 1860 a number of societies were formed by well-to-do citizens to supply corn and bread to the poor at low prices, and the most important of these also featured a savings bank and sick benefit fund.

Thus the way had been paved for the General Cooperative Society when the need for it arose in 1865. It was modeled after the Rochdale Society, the famous English cooperative. Membership was open to all classes of the people and earnings were distributed to members in proportion to their patronage—dividends upon the money spent rather than the money invested with the Society—after setting aside each year 10 per cent for a reserve fund.

Growth Both Rapid and Sound.

The Society started business with one store and a membership of 212. By the end of 1866 three more stores and a bakery had been added, the membership was 555, and the annual turnover was 181,021 francs. Ten years later there were 15 stores and 2333 members and the volume of business had grown proportionately.

The greatest gain was made during the period from 1886 to 1906, when the number of stores increased from 20 to 87, the number of members from 5412 to 28,538, and the annual turnover from 2,347,233 francs to 16,408,008 francs. Last year there were 188 stores with 43,158 members, the volume of business was in excess of 53,000,000 francs, an 8 per cent dividend was paid, and the reserve fund was 3,214,785 francs. These francs, by the way, are all of a par value of 19.3 cents.

Opposition from retail dealers and dissension within the ranks of the members made the early years of the Society difficult, it is stated, but a reorganization in 1869 resulted in rapid expansion and since 1885 the history of the organization has been one of uninterrupted progress.

Of the retail establishments owned and operated by the Society last year, 140 were grocery stores, 34 were butcher shops, 10 were shoe stores, 1 was a department store, and 3 were devoted to household furnishings. Real estate owned was valued at almost $3,000,000.

The largest item in the turnover last year was groceries, $2,742,930. Dairy products sold amounted to $2,351,180, while the butcher shops did a business of $1,829,633. Incidentally, it may be pointed out, the Society did a business of almost three-fourths of a million dollars in wine and beer. Seventy per cent of the total sales were made to members and the remainder to non-members who are encouraged to patronize the stores. Net earnings for the year amounted to $813,821, of which $574,286 went in rebates to members and $202,863 was set aside for amortizations and endowments. The Society now operates five dairy farms, three of which it owns and the other two it leases. Last year it handled 19,600,000 quarts of milk, 266,240 bottles of sterilized milk, 167,520 bottles of cream, 1,707,000 pounds of butter, and 725,000 pounds of cheese.

Encouragement of savings is one of the main tenets of the Society and at the end of last year it carried on its books 16539 individual accounts, representing deposits of $2,183,550. Interests at the rate of 4½ per cent is paid on the savings accounts.

Marketing Cooperatives.

In contrast with this Society, most of the successful cooperatives in the United States are marketing instead of retail organizations, their business covering almost every kind of agricultural product. A grain exchange at Lansing, Mich., did a business of $8,000,000 during the last fiscal year and in 1926 poultry products valued at more than $40,000,000 were marketed by a 67 farmer-owned associations that served 55,000 farmers. Egg sales amounted to $30,000,000, live poultry sales were $4,850,000 and dressed poultry sales $6,500,600. The associations handling eggs sold more than 90,000,000 dozens, 68 per cent of this volume of business being done by 14 associations located in the Pacific Coast States. A single California cooperative handled 28 per cent of the total quantity, while one in the State of Washington handled 24 per cent of the total. Missouri with 9 cooperatives handled about 20 per cent of the total quantity of eggs marketed.

Success in the cooperative marketing of cotton is shown in the record made by the North Carolina Association which on September 1 will distribute almost $500,000 of its reserve fund among its members. This reserve represents 1 per cent deductions from the sales value of the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops marketed through the association. The deduction in connection with the 1922 crop has already been returned and that from the 1926 crop will be refunded next March. The per-bale cost of marketing has been reduced in five years from $8.10 to $4.30, and it is expected that as a result of economies recently instituted the forthcoming crop will be handled at even smaller cost.

Among other achievements claimed by the management is a reduction in interest rate on money borrowed for advances to the growers from 6 per cent to 4½ per cent, a reduction in storage and insurance charges from 50 cents to 35c a bale, the institution of the practice of paying a premium on cotton grading better than middling and of longer staple than ⅞ of an inch, and the development of a direct-to-mill and export business which includes 72 per cent of the cotton handled by the association.

One of the newest cooperatives is an association recently formed in the State of Washington for the marketing of honey. Beekeepers of two counties have been enrolled and it is expected that the association will begin business with approximately 400 tons of honey to market. That amount of honey, it is estimated, will suffice for about 75,000,000 biscuits.

Youngstown Auto Body Firm Makes 'Em Look Like New

To enumerate, in detail, the various phases of work done by the Youngstown Auto Body and Painting Co., would be a tedious and difficult task in view of the vast scope taken in by this skilled organization, but the whole thing may be epitomized in their own slogan, "We make wrecked cars look like new."

Their plant is located at 1148 Pennsylvania avenue. Here veteran cars of the open road are taken in, straightened up and turned out again in first class shape.

Fender and body work is one of the specialties at the Youngstown Auto Body Co. After a wreck or collision of any kinnd that twists up a fender or two or dents the body, take the car to these people and it'll be made as good as new.

Expert welders eliminate the cracks and breaks. Automobile tops of all kinds, closed or open cars, are repaired or rebuilt as the case demands. If desired, inclosures can be applied to open cars to provide comfort for winter driving. Duco finishes and painting of all kinds is done here. Worn out seats are recovered and in fact all kinds of upholstering work can be obtained at reasonable prices considering the efficiency and workmanship.

William Holtzman, the owner, guarantees and stands back of every bit of work that is turned out at this plant.

Clean, Palatable Food is Standard At Busy Bee Here

A world famous military leader once remarked that "an army moves on its stomach," or words to that effect, indicating the importance in which he held the proper rationing of his troops at all times, and his views might be applied with equal effect to the army of business employes and working men that are on the move, helping to build a progressive city, every day.

Food is the fuel that makes the human "machinery" go. At the convenient Busy Bee restaurant in the Diamond, every effort is made to produce and serve clean, palatable food all the day 'round for its many patrons, foods that nourish and foods that please.

The Busy Bee menu covers a wide range and selection from breakfast on through the day and night. The doors of this establishment are never closed. Clean efficient service is provided 24 hours of every day, this, in itself, testifying to the firm's desire to be of service.

Operated by skilled management, men experienced in the restaurant business, the Busy Bee serves only the best and purest of foods, cooked and prepared in a way distinctly to the liking of its clientele.

The Busy Bee operates both table service and a lunch counter and there is always someone to take your order.

Auto Top Shop Aid To Motorists in Achieving Comfort

Your auto may have a nicely colored top and fine long wearing springs in the seats, but if the top doesn't keep the rain and weather out where it belongs and if the springs keep sticking up through the seats to ruin clothing and dispositions, they are not serving their purpose.

There are a number of factors entering into the successful operation of an automobile such as miles to the gallon, power on the hills, comfortable riding, convenience, safety and other things, but none are more important than the comfort and convenience of the occupants.

These are qualities, if they are missing in your particular car, that can be supplied by the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop.

If the top of your car has seen so much service that its condition is beginning to become doubtful, take it to the Auto Top Shop and at reasonable rates, consistent with the quality of the work, your troubles will disappear.

In addition to work on tops, the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop reconditions old upholstering that is beginning to let the springs through and can also fix you up if in need of side curtains.

High quality workmanship and the best of materials in all jobs are standard. The shop is located in Rural lane near the corner of Dresden avenue.

Extensive Service In Jewelry Line At Prescott Shop

A metropolitan service over a wide range in the jewelry field recommends the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop at 704 St. Clair avenue, to East Liverpool district patrons.

Prescott gives his customers the benefit of experience he obtained in the Elgin and Illinois factories as well as with other jewelry manufacturers and distributors in the east.

He repairs Swiss watches, saving the expense and inconvenience of shipping them to distant shops.

If you have valuable jewelry that, because of design, is somewhat out of date, Prescott promises satisfactory results if you desire to have some particular design remodeled or diamonds reset.

Youngstown Auto Body Firm Makes 'Em Look Like New

To enumerate, in detail, the various phases of work done by the Youngstown Auto Body and Painting Co., would be a tedious and difficult task in view of the vast scope taken in by this skilled organization, but the whole thing may be epitomized in their own slogan, "We make wrecked cars look like new."

Their plant is located at 1148 Pennsylvania avenue. Here veteran cars of the open road are taken in, straightened up and turned out again in first class shape.

Fender and body work is one of the specialties at the Youngstown Auto Body Co. After a wreck or collision of any kinnd that twists up a fender or two or dents the body, take the car to these people and it'll be made as good as new.

Expert welders eliminate the cracks and breaks. Automobile tops of all kinds, closed or open cars, are repaired or rebuilt as the case demands. If desired, inclosures can be applied to open cars to provide comfort for winter driving. Duco finishes and painting of all kinds is done here. Worn out seats are recovered and in fact all kinds of upholstering work can be obtained at reasonable prices considering the efficiency and workmanship.

William Holtzman, the owner, guarantees and stands back of every bit of work that is turned out at this plant.

Clean, Palatable Food is Standard At Busy Bee Here

A world famous military leader once remarked that "an army moves on its stomach," or words to that effect, indicating the importance in which he held the proper rationing of his troops at all times, and his views might be applied with equal effect to the army of business employes and working men that are on the move, helping to build a progressive city, every day.

Food is the fuel that makes the human "machinery" go. At the convenient Busy Bee restaurant in the Diamond, every effort is made to produce and serve clean, palatable food all the day 'round for its many patrons, foods that nourish and foods that please.

The Busy Bee menu covers a wide range and selection from breakfast on through the day and night. The doors of this establishment are never closed. Clean efficient service is provided 24 hours of every day, this, in itself, testifying to the firm's desire to be of service.

Operated by skilled management, men experienced in the restaurant business, the Busy Bee serves only the best and purest of foods, cooked and prepared in a way distinctly to the liking of its clientele.

The Busy Bee operates both table service and a lunch counter and there is always someone to take your order.

Auto Top Shop Aid To Motorists in Achieving Comfort

Your auto may have a nicely colored top and fine long wearing springs in the seats, but if the top doesn't keep the rain and weather out where it belongs and if the springs keep sticking up through the seats to ruin clothing and dispositions, they are not serving their purpose.

There are a number of factors entering into the successful operation of an automobile such as miles to the gallon, power on the hills, comfortable riding, convenience, safety and other things, but none are more important than the comfort and convenience of the occupants.

These are qualities, if they are missing in your particular car, that can be supplied by the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop.

If the top of your car has seen so much service that its condition is beginning to become doubtful, take it to the Auto Top Shop and at reasonable rates, consistent with the quality of the work, your troubles will disappear.

In addition to work on tops, the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop reconditions old upholstering that is beginning to let the springs through and can also fix you up if in need of side curtains.

High quality workmanship and the best of materials in all jobs are standard. The shop is located in Rural lane near the corner of Dresden avenue.

Extensive Service In Jewelry Line At Prescott Shop

A metropolitan service over a wide range in the jewelry field recommends the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop at 704 St. Clair avenue, to East Liverpool district patrons.

Factory experience, an exclusive repair service on Swiss watches, diamond settings, remodeling, designing, selling and chime clock repairing as well as many other more detailed lines are all available at this up to date establishment.

Prescott gives his customers the benefit of experience he obtained in the Elgin and Illinois factories as well as with other jewelry manufacturers and distributors in the east.

He repairs Swiss watches, saving the expense and inconvenience of shipping them to distant shops.

If you have valuable jewelry that, because of design, is somewhat out of date, Prescott promises satisfactory results if you desire to have some particular design remodeled or diamonds reset.

NEW CHRYSLER 72

A Statement from Walter P. Chrysler:

In announcing the Illustrious New Chrysler "72," we are confident that our latest product is as great an advance over today's fine cars as was the famous "70" over the best of four years ago.

The New "72" is ultra modern — again setting new standards, establishing new results for the industry to follow.

The New Chrysler "72" with the Great, New "62", the New "52," and the magnificent Imperial "80" — are Chrysler's covenant of faith with the public which has so generously demonstrated its faith in us.

W. P. Chrysler

$1495 to $1745, f. o. b. Detroit

Longer, Roomier, Faster, Handsomer

The Illustrious New Chrysler "72" —longer, roomier, faster and handsomer—but that tells only a touch of the "72" story.

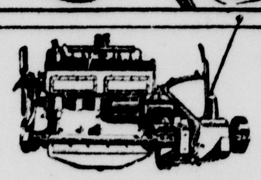
For the first time, in a car costing less than $2000, the New "72" gives an engine of 75 horsepower, with counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft and rubber engine mountings to wipe out every last vestige of vibration.

It gives you speed of 72 and more miles an hour, pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, hill-climbing ability that sweeps you up even mountain grades at constant acceleration.

It gives you rubber shock insulators, pioneered with such great success in the Chrysler Imperial "80." The spring ends are anchored in blocks of live rubber, eliminating wear, noise and the need for lubrication. These insulators, with the special Chrysler spring suspension result in riding smoothness hitherto unknown.

It gives you longer, more beautiful bodies, tastefully appointed, luxuriously roomy, and fully equipped with saddle-spring seat-cushions and adjustable steering wheel to give you the utmost in comfort.

Test it to your satisfaction in every conceivable manner. Only then can you appreciate just how much wider is the gap which the Chrysler "72" has placed between itself and all others in this class.



"Red-Head" Sets Chrysler Performance Farther Ahead

For those who seek supreme performance — speed, pick-up, hill-climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sixes—Chrysler furnishes its new "Red-Head" high compression engine .... The New Chrysler "Red-Head" will be regular equipment on the Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Roadster, giving even greater speed and acceleration than the standards announced. It is also available for all other "72" body models.

Longer, Roomier, Faster, Handsomer

The Illustrious New Chrysler "72" —longer, roomier, faster and handsomer—but that tells only a touch of the "72" story.

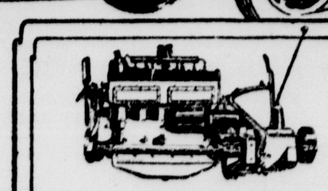
For the first time, in a car costing less than $2000, the New "72" gives an engine of 75 horsepower, with counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft and rubber engine mountings to wipe out every last vestige of vibration.

It gives you speed of 72 and more miles an hour, pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, hill-climbing ability that sweeps you up even mountain grades at constant acceleration.

It gives you rubber shock insulators, pioneered with such great success in the Chrysler Imperial "80." The spring ends are anchored in blocks of live rubber, eliminating wear, noise and the need for lubrication. These insulators, with the special Chrysler spring suspension result in riding smoothness hitherto unknown.

It gives you longer, more beautiful bodies, tastefully appointed, luxuriously roomy, and fully equipped with saddle-spring seat-cushions and adjustable steering wheel to give you the utmost in comfort.

Test it to your satisfaction in every conceivable manner. Only then can you appreciate just how much wider is the gap which the Chrysler "72" has placed between itself and all others in this class.



"Red-Head" Sets Chrysler Performance Farther Ahead

For those who seek supreme performance — speed, pick-up, hill-climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sizes—Chrysler furnishes its new "Red-Head" high compression engine .... The New Chrysler "Red-Head" will be regular equipment on the Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Roadster, giving even greater speed and acceleration than the standards announced. It is also available for all other "72" body models.

Illustrious New Chrysler "72" prices—Eight body styles, $1495 and upwards, f. o. b. Detroit. Chrysler dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK Aug. 22.—General Motors was the sole center of speculative interests in early trading in the stock market today. A 30-per cent increase in the July output of cars by the corporation, enormous public demand for the new models of Buick and Chevrolet cars, fine prospect of additional cash dividends this year and a better than five per cent annual distribution to holders of the stock after the split-up, were the main factors in the nation-wide demand for General oMtors stock today. Brokerage houses reported an enormous influx of buying orders from all of the important outside financial centers.

Hudson Motors responded to the increase of its annual dividend from $3.50 to $5 a share by jumping two points at the outset but there was plenty of stock available around 85½, at which price active trading took place. Houston Oil, Yellow Truck and other noted ground-gainers were under pressure in the second hour.

Call money was unchanged at three and one-half per cent with some offerings reported in the outside market at three per cent. Cotton fell down a few points at the opening on southern liquidation.

Grain was firm and foreign exchanges unchanged. Some falling off in railroad traffic was reported, also a moderate decline in railroad earnings. Wall street banking houses freely predicted three pre cent call loan rate if outside funds continued to flow in as freely as during the last two weeks.

CAVE EXPLORER RESCUES SELF

Lawrence Ashley Lost for Week in Tennessee Caverns.

NICKAJACK CAVE, SHELL MOUND, Tenn., Aug. 22.—In a semi-hysterical condition, Lawrence Ashley, geologist-explorer, lost in the myriads of subterranean passages, lakes and rivers of Nickajack cave for almost a week, was resting easily today after having walked from his living tomb through a new exit in Georgia.

Emerging from his living tomb yesterday morning after having spent five days burrowing through the subterranean passages of Sand Mountain, Ashley stumbled into the sunlight and fresh air again at a wild and desolate spot known as Castle Rock in the Georgia side about five miles from the entrance to the cave.

His face black with a week's beard, his clothing torn and caked with clay and his battered and torn knapsack upon his bent back, Ashley came upon the child of John Campbell local farmer, who screamed the news to her father. Refusing help he made his way towards his home, babbling wildly and incoherently.

After a hearty meal, Ashley narrated a brief account of his experiences in the underground caverns of Sand mountain, warded off newspaper men and went to sleep.

Lawyers Fight

Eight Avenues Open.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Fighting desperately against time and in the "last ditch" an imposing array of lawyers made eight rapid-fire attempts to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, scheduled to go to the electric chair a few minutes after midnight. These moves were:

1—Chief Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill and others asked Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States court at Isle Au Haut, Maine, for a stay of execution.

2—Associate Defense Attorney M. A. Musmanno tried to arrange an interview with Chief Justice William Howard Taft across the American side of the Canadian border.

3—A drive was started on Governor Alvan T. Fuller and his executive council for another respite.

4—A new action of a "new and startling nature" was filed in the United States district court by three famous lawyers—Arthur Garfield Hayes, New York, Francis Isher Kane, Philadelphia and Frank J. Walsh, New York.

5—Federal intervention was sought through United States Senators David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

6—A dash about greater Boston in search of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, member of the governor's advisory Review commission was made due to reports that department of justice files at Washington would be opened if a member of the advisory committee or a high state official requested such action.

7—Another appeal for a stay was made to Superior Court Judge Sisk, who "sat in" at the conference last week between Attorney Hill and Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall.

88—Plans were underw way for seeking an injunction restraining the prison warden from carrying out the execution for a week pending proceedings looking to a review of the constitutionality of the law that the state supreme court reviews law points rather than evidence.

An exchange of telegrams between Chief Justice Taft and Attorney Musmanno resulted in the conclusion that a meeting on the American-Canadian border was impossible because of the element of time. A dash north by airplane was practically bandoned.

Deny Any Part in Crime.

The appeals for a stay to the justices of the United States supreme court and to Governor Fuller were based on the ground that an application for a writ of certiorari had been filed with the federal supreme court in Washington and that Sacco and Vanzetti should not be executed until they had an opportunity to present the case before the federal courts. In refusing a stay, Associate Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes said that he would grant a stay if he had any idea that the federal court would grant the certiorari writ application.

The move for federal intervention hinged around the department of justice files, which the defense claims will show that Sacco and Vanzetti were not near the scene of the murder of Paymaster Frederick A. Uarmenter and his guard, Allesandro Berardelli, in South Braintree seven years ago.

The Hayes-Kane-Walsh move was shrouded in the deepest mystery and was said by the Citizens' National Sacco-Vanzetti committee to be "a trump card." The trio of lawyers worked throughout the night and until early morning "preparing papers." These papers will be disclosed only and if thy reach the courts, they said, adding that the papers contained something of a "startling nature."

Plan for Electrocution.

Meanwhile, plans for the electrocution went forward. The executionist tested the death chair. Searchlights were set up outside the Charlestown prison. Several hundred Boston police were ordered on duty at the prison. Places for machine guns were cleared. Streets were roped off. A squad of 100 state troopers, forty mounted, were mobilized for prison duty tonight.

THIEVES LOOT TWO HOUSES

Homes of R. W. Faulk and Herbert Bailey Visited.

Police officials are investigating robberies which occurred during the week-end at the homes of Mrs. Herbert Bailey, West Eighth street, and R. W. Faulk, 218 West Fifth street, in which small sums of money and a large quantity of jewelry was stolen.

Entrance was gained to the Bailey home by means of a skeleton key, while access to the Faulk home was secured by forcing a window. The cases were investigated by Captain Mason Conley and Officer James Haley.

The airplane carrier Langley, with her brood of thirty observation planes, and the airplane tender Aroostock, with four seaplanes, at her side, will reach today the approximate position at which the Dallas Spirit fell.

Prayers were offered in San Francisco churches that Erwin, Pedlar, Knope, Eichwald, Frost, Scott and the brave "Flying Schoolmarm" may yet be found alive. Church services in San Francisco were entirely devoted to intercession with the Alimights on behalf of the missing flyers.

Mrs. Erwin Abandons Hope.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 22.—Hope was abandoned today by the wife of Captain William P. Erwin, pilot of the Dallas Spirit, Pacific Mercy plane, that he ever will be found alive.

A brother, ill with typhoid fever, in the West Collingswood home of her grandparents, monopolized the attention of Mrs. Erwin during the first flying hours after her husband disappeared, but she has been forced to leave the sick bed and give way to her grief. She is now prostrated by sorrow.

Only a technicality placed Mrs. Erwin in the New Jersey home of her relatives instead of in the Pacific with her husband. She and Captain Erwin had completed plans for a flight around the world when at the last minutes, the Erwins learned that all contestants for the Easterwood prize had to be 21 years of age or over. Mrs. Erwin is only 19.

CAVE EXPLORER RESCUES SELF

NICKAJACK CAVE, SHELLMOUND, Tenn., Aug. 22.—In a semi-hysterical condition, Lawrence Ashley, geologist-explorer, lost in the myriads of subterranean passages, lakes and rivers of Nickajack cave for almost a week, was resting easily today after having walked from his living tomb through a new exit in Georgia.

Emerging from his living tomb yesterday morning after having spent five days burrowing through the subterranean passages of Sand Mountain, Ashley stumbled into the sunlight and fresh air again at a wild and desolate spot known as Castle Rock in the Georgia side about five miles from the entrance to the cave.

His face black with a week's beard, his clothing torn and caked with clay and his battered and torn knapsack upon his bent back, Ashley came upon the child of John Campbell ocal farmer, who screamed the news to her father. Refusing help he made his way towards his home, babbling wildly and incoherently.

After a hearty meal, Ashley narrated a brief account of his experiences in the underground caverns of Sand mountain, warded off newspaper men and went to sleep.

Lawyers Fight

Eight Avenues Open.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Fighting desperately against time and in the "last ditch" an imposing array of lawyers made eight rapid-fire attempts to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, scheduled to go to the electric chair a few minutes after midnight. These moves were:

1—Chief Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill and others asked Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States court at Isle Au Haut, Maine, for a stay of execution.

2—Associate Defense Attorney M. A. Musmanno tried to arrange an interview with Chief Justice William Howard Taft across the American side of the Canadian border.

3—A drive was started on Governor Alvan T. Fuller and his executive council for another respite.

4—A new action of a "new and startling nature" was filed in the United States district court by three famous lawyers—Arthur Garfield Hayes, New York, Francis Isher Kane, Philadelphia and Frank J. Walsh, New York.

5—Federal intervention was sought through United States Senators David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

6—A dash about greafer Boston in search of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, member of the governor's advisory Review commission was made due to reports that department of justice files at Washington would be opened if a member of the advisory committee or a high state official requested such action.

7—Another appeal for a stay was made to Superior Court Judge Sisk, who "sat in" at the conference last week between Attorney Hill and Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall.

88.—Plans were underw way for seeking an injunction restraining the prison warden from carrying out the execution for a week pending proceedings looking to a review of the constitutionality of the law that the state supreme court reviews law points rather than evidence.

An exchange of telegrams between Chief Justice Taft and Attorney Musmanno resulted in the conclusion that a meeting on the American-Canadian border was impossible because of the element of time. A dash north by airplane was practically bandoned.

Deny Any Part in Crime.

The appeals for a stay to the justices of the United States supreme court and to Governor Fuller were based on the ground that an application for a writ of certiorari had been filed with the federal supreme court in Washington and that Sacco and Vanzetti should not be executed until they had an opportunity to present the case before the federal courts. In refusing a stay, Associate Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes said that he would grant a stay if he had any idea that the federal court would grant the certiorari writ application.

The move for federal intervention hinged around the department of justice files, which the defense claims will show that Sacco and Vanzetti were not near the scene of the murder of Paymaster Frederick A. Uarmenter and his guard, Allesandro Berardelli, in South Braintree seven years ago.

The Hayes-Kane-Walsh move was shrouded in the deepest mystery and was said by the Citizens' National Sacco-Vanzetti committee to be "a trump card." The trio of lawyers worked throughout the night and until early morning "preparing papers." These papers will be disclosed only and if thy reach the courts, they said, adding that the papers contained something of a "startling nature."

Plan for Electrocution.

Meanwhile, plans for the electrocution went forward. The executionist tested the death chair. Searchlights were set up outside the Charlestown prison. Several hundred Boston police were ordered on duty at the prison. Places for machine guns were cleared. Streets were roped off. A squad of 100 state troopers, forty mounted, were mobilized for prison duty tonight.

Entrance was gained to the Bailey home by means of a skeleton key, while access to the Faulk home was secured by forcing a window. The cases were investigated by Captain Mason Conley and Officer James Haley.

No Trace of Flyers

Mildred Doran in the Miss Doran, and for Jack Frost and Gordon Scott in the Hearst monoplane.

Today is scheduled to be the last full day of the search by the United States navy across the 2,400 mile San Francisco-Hawaiian trail. The navy will abandon the search tomorrow, according to official orders.

The airplane carrier Langley, with her brood of thirty observation planes, and the airplane tender Aroostock, with four seaplanes, at her side, will reach today the approximate position at which the Dallas Spirit fell.

Prayers were offered in San Francisco churches that Erwin, Pediar, Knope, Eichwald, Frost, Scott and the brave "Flying Schoolmarm" may yet be found alive. Church services in San Francisco were entirely devoted to intercession with the Alimights on behalf of the missing flyers.

Mrs. Erwin Abandons Hope.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 22.—Hope was abandoned today by the wife of Captain William P. Erwin, pilot of the Dallas Spirit, Pacific Mercy plane, that he ever will be found alive.

A brother, ill with typhoid fever, in the West Collingswood home of her grandparents, monopolized the attention of Mrs. Erwin during the first flying hours after her husband disappeared, but she has been forced to leave the sick bed and give way to her grief. She is now prostrated by sorrow.

Only a technicality placed Mrs. Erwin in the New Jersey home of her relatives instead of in the Pacific with her husband. She and Captain Erwin had completed plans for a flight around the world when at the last minutes, the Erwins learned that all contestants for the Easterwood prize had to be 21 years of age or over. Mrs. Erwin is only 19.

Now the spectroscope is used to study defects in the metal of automobile engines, allowing scientists actually to LOOK into the cylinders of the engine. Perhaps somebody some day will use the spectra to identify oil, gold and water in the ground.

VOTERS TO PASS ON BOND ISSUE

Special Election Will be Held Next Monday at Cove.

Electors of Holliday's Cove will pass on a proposed bond issue of $25,000 at a special election to be held on Monday, August 29, for the purpose of improving several streets.

The resolution prepared by Solicitor Thomas Hoffman was read before council and approved, after which the date for the special election was set. The provisions of the election order are that a three-fifths percentage of the vote cast on election day must be for ratification in order to pass the measure.

The proposed $25,000 bond issue calls for the paving of Hudson avenue and Orchard street, from Crothers lane to Maryland avenue with reinforced concrete. The block from Maryland avenue to Hudson avenue will not however be improved until next spring, while the improvement of Orchard street is expected this fall if the bond issue passes.

Mayor C. S. Cattrel appointed the following persons as members of the election board, D. M. Shakley, Morris Hindman, Thomas Campbell, Mrs. F. E. Engel and Mrs. Gertrude Thomas.

The improvement of West, Orchard and Elm streets and Mildren avenue, now being paced with reinforced concrete by Fred Robinson Contracting company, is progressing and will likely be completed before winter.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

The prospective tenant had inspected the bathroom, electric bell, coal cellar, and all the other conveniences of a London flat, and expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the porter.

"I have."

"Then you can't have the flat."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is 30 years old, married, and lives in Australia, and the other two are in America!"

"That makes no difference," said the porter. "I have orders not to let this flat to anyone with children!"

Wires Crossed.

"Twelve Miles Out" Opens at American Today.

"Sea legs" are acquired by human beings by travel on ships—usually but "sea legs" for cameras are another thing indeed; a new invention that makes photography at sea something hitherto unknown in the annals of the screen.

The new invention was used in the filming of the ocean sequences in "Twelve Miles Out," John Gilbert's new Metro-Galdwyn-Mayer starring vehicles, now playing at the American theatre.

Under the old methods, cameras mounted on ships had the mation of the ship imparted to them, with the result that the sea moved in every direction on the screen, according to how the camera moved on the boat.

The new "sea legs" devices is on the principle of a gyroscope which actuate the modern mariner's compass, and, by its use, no matter how the ship pitches, the camera remains on an even keel.

Gilbret's new picture, in which the device was used, is a vivid adventure story of the sea, adapted from the stage play by William Anthony McGuire and directed by Jack Conway. Joan Crawford plays the heroine, and the cast includes Eileen Percy, Ernest Torrence, Bert Roach, Edward Earle, Paulette Dival, Dorothy Sebastian, Gwen Lee, Richard Travers and others of note.

Special Election Will be Held Next Monday at Cove.

Electors of Holliday's Cove will pass on a proposed bond issue of $25,000 at a special election to be held on Monday, August 29, for the purpose of improving several streets.

The provisions of the election order are that a three-fifths percentage of the vote cast on election day must be for ratification in order to pass the measure.

The block from Maryland avenue to Hudson avenue will not however be improved until next spring, whie the improvement of Orchard street is expected this fall if the bond issue passes.

"Twelve Miles Out" Opens at American Today.

"Sea legs" are acquired by human beings by travel on ships—usually But "sea legs" for cameras are another thing indeed; a new invention that makes photography at sea something hitherto unknown in the annals of the screen.

The new invention was used in the filming of the ocean sequences in "Twelve Miles Out," John Gilbert's new Metro-Galdwyn-Mayer starring vehicles, now playing at the American theatre.

Under the old methods, cameras mounted on ships had the mation of the ship imparted to them, with the result that the sea moved in every direction on the screen, according to how the camera moved on the boat. The new "sea legs" devices is on the principle of a gyroscope which actuate the modern mariner's compass, and, by its use, no matter how the ship pitches, the camera remains on an even keel.

Pity Fat Man

CHICAGO.—Added to the fact that "nobody loves a fat man," another handicap is attached to the poor men whose proportions do not measure up to the size of an Apollo. A survey made by a professor at the University of Chicago discloses that fat students do not use their thinking faculty as readily as the lean and lanky ones. "Of course this does not apply to all cases," the survey adds as a consolation.

DINNER STORIES

A Slight Misunderstanding.

The prospective tenant had inspected the bathroom, electric bell, coal cellar, and all the other conveniences of a London flat, and expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the porter.

"I have."

"Then you can't have the flat."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is 30 years old, married, and lives in Australia, and the other two are in America!"

"That makes no difference," said the porter. "I have orders not to let this flat to anyone with children!"

Wires Crossed.

"Is this Republican headquarters?" asked the inquirer over the wire of the Democratic committee offices.

ENGLAND BUILDS METAL AIRSHIP

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A new all-metal air boat, claimed to be the fastest flying ship of its size in the world and capable of remaining in the air for 14 hours, has recently been constructed by the Blackburn Aeroplane company Lere.

The chief feature of this new airship is the all-metal hull, which not only is lighter than a wooden hull but save a water soakage of 600 pounds. The hull also takes the place of floats on a seaplane. Iris II. as the plane is called, is not a seaplane but a flying ship. Driven by three Rolls-Royce "Condor" engines, developing 2,100 horsepower, the ship can take off from the water for flight at 50 knots.

With ample accommodation for five persons, the flying ship contains the latest modern conveniences for air travel. The navigator's cockpit, with every equipment, is similar to the captain's cabin in a sea-going vessel. There is a separate accommodation for the wireless operator. Three huge tanks are maintained for the storage of water, a culinary department with electrically-heated ovens and portholes along the sides of the ship complete the illusion that one is in an ordinary liner.

The ship is so constructed that it can cruise on the water or remain at its moorings for nine months out of the 12, and will be able to ride out all but the roughest weather.

WELLSVILLE MILL WORKER ESCAPES IN AUTO CRASH

CAR WRECKED AS IT PLUNGES OVER BRIDGE

20-FOOT DROP

Break in Steering Gear is Blamed for Accident.

John Jones, 27 years old, of 419 Buckeye avenue, employe of the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant here, miraculously escaped with cuts and bruises when his automobile in which he was riding to work this morning at 7 o'clock plunged through a railing on the street car bridge over Little Yellow creek and crashed to the creek bottom, a sheer drop of probably 20 feet.

Jones was pulled out of the wreckage of his machine by passersby, given medical attention by Dr. J. M. King and taken to the East Liverpool City hospital. After his injuries had been fully dressed he was taken home, having been in the hospital little more than an hour.

Jones, who is employed in the bar mill, was enroute to the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant when the accident occurred. He claims that the steering gear suddenly buckled or caught some way and his car, an old model Overland, swerved to the left hand side of the bridge and dove over into the rock in the practically dry creek bottom below.

A couple of sections of the iron railing along the edge of the bridge were torn off by the machine. The car, which was ruined in the drop, was taken to the Heitman Wrecking company quarters in Wells avenue.

Arrest All Traffic Light Violators

The majority of local motorists have seen the new traffic light at Ninth and Main street and know what it's for and, accordingly, arrests will be made for violating red blocks, Chief of Police John Fultz announced today.

While a number of auto drivers have been observed going through red blocks since the light was installed, there were no arrests made.

The period of leniency granted by police, however, expires tonight. After that it will be a fine of from $5 to $25 as provided in a city ordinance.

HOLD DRIVER OF STOLEN CAR

Aurora, Ill., Authorities Plan Investigation.

Harry Woomer, arrested by police here last week, driving an automobile bearing an Illinois license, believed by authorities to have been stolen from Aurora, Ill., will be held in custody here pending an investigation by Aurora authorities.

In reply to a telegram sent Aurora police authorities after the car had been found here, Chief John Fultz today was asked to hold both the driver and the car. It is likely that a representative of the Aurora police department will be sent here to investigate.

WILL CONTINUE REVIVAL MEETS

Evangelistic services launched yesterday in the Free Methodist church "tabernacle" in Thirteenth and Main streets, will be continued during the week with meetings every evening.

Rev. John McDonald, of East Liverpool, will preach. Special music will be a feature.

Street meeting will be held tonight at 7 o'clock prior to the tabernacle services.

WILL VOTE ON SCHOOL BONDS

Yellow Creek Township Board Plans New Building.

At a meeting of the board of education of Yellow Creek township, it was determined to vote on a band issue of $10,000 at the November election for the purpose of erecting a new brick school building at Salisbury.

The McLain Fire Brick Co., which is operating a large plant at Salisbury, has indicated its willingness to aid in the cost of the building, tentative plans for which call for the erection of a two room structure. The brick for the new school will be obtained through the McLain company.

CLEVELAND MAN WILL RECOVER

Wm. Glaser, Hurt in Auto Accident, is Improving.

Recovering from the effects of injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday morning near McCracken's corners, in the Salem-Lisbon road, William Glaser, of Cleveland, former Wellsville resident, may be removed from the Salem City hospital to the home of relatives here this week.

Several examinations made by Salem physicians Saturday and Sunday indicated that Glaser had escaped with no broken bones or internal injuries and was suffering largely from shock.

The car in which Glaser was riding, together with his brother-in-law and the latter's wife, attempted to pass another machine and skidded, overturning in the roadway.

Glaser was enroute from Wellsville to join his wife, who had been spending the last two weeks here.

Saturday Auto Traffic Heavy

There were more automobiles moving about Wellsville streets Saturday night than probably any other time in the city's history, according to police authorities.

CROWD OF 3,500 AT FIREWORKS

Display is Feature of St. Rocco Observance.

Approximately 3,500 persons, including hundreds from East Liverpool and nearby territory, attended the St. Rocco fireworks display Saturday evening at Nicholson Field, the event being one of the chief features of the annual observance of local Italian people.

Passarelli's band, of Youngstown, gave a concert prior to the fireworks, in front of the school in Eleventh street and played during the pyrotechnical exhibition.

Church services and other events yesterday concluded the observance.

FERNLEAF CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Charles Stewart entertained members of the Fernleaf club Saturday evening at her home in Wells avenue.

Fancywork and contests were diversions. Mrs. David Griffith and Mrs. John Hand were awarded prizes.

Luncheon was served to the following members:

Mrs. Lee Fassett, Mrs. Ed McIntosh, Mrs. Dorothy Parker, Mrs. Albert Beech, Mrs. N. C. Zoellers, Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. Earl Ward, Mrs. John Hand, Mrs. David Griffith, Mrs. Dwight Moorehead, Mrs. Frank Ice and Mrs. Vilgil Hawksworth.

DEFEAT NEWELL IN EXHIBITION

Nash Motors Win From League Champs Here, 7-4.

In a Saturday afternoon exhibition that had no bearing, unfortunately for Wellsville club, on the City league standing, the Nash Motors defeated the Laughlin champions, 7 to 4.

Easton, on the rubber for the locals, gave up 10 hits, but with the exception of one inning, the sixth, he was never in serious trouble. In that frame Renaldi worked him for a pass. Bubin came through with his third hit of the game and Sayre also received a free ticket to first, filling the sacks.

Lange then fouled to C. Coleman, at third for Wellsville, but Grimm's hit scored both Renaldi and Bubin. Easton then fanned Crawford and Webber flied to Adamson at third.

Laughlin used three hurlers. Digman started on the mound, but gave way to Grimm, former Mid-Atlantic hurler, after allowing four hits and seven runs and Grimm, in turn, was supplanted by Ashe who finished the game.

Catcher Lange for Newell had a bad day, a number of passed balls chargeable to him permitting several Wellsville runs.

This particular murder case occurred in Middlesex county, this state, and upon conviction, the murderer was sentenced to be hanged. This occurred after the electrocution law had gone in effect. The sentence of hanging was due to the fact that the crime was committed before the act providing for electrocution became a law. This man was hanged according to the sentence and was the last hanging in New Jersey. This occurred some time in 1907."

Q. Why are people from Indiana called Hoosiers? M. M.

A. The origin of the word "Hoosier" is obscure. It first appeared in literature January 1, 1833, in a poem by John Finley, entitled—"The Hoosier's Nest," and soon afterwards the newspapers were discussing the origin of the term. Among the theories suggested is one advanced by James Whitcomb Riley, according to whom the earlier settlers were so pugnacious that they even bit off the ears of their opponents. Any one, therefore, seeing an ear lying upon a dramshop floor would merely inquire "Whose ear?" Another idea is that the term came from the custom of Indiana settlers of answering a knock at the door by calling, "Who's Yere?"

Q. Do all mammals have hair? L. B. M.

A. Hair is the characteristic covering of mammals. Hairs are not wanting on any mammals, but vary greatly in abundance, some being densely clothed while others possess it only on limited parts of the body.

WELLSVILLE MILL WORKER ESCAPES IN AUTO CRASH

CAR WRECKED AS IT PLUNGES OVER BRIDGE

20-FOOT DROP

Break in Steering Gear is Blamed for Accident.

John Jones, 27 years old, of 419 Buckeye avenue, employe of the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant here, miraculously escaped with cuts and bruises when his automobile in which he was riding to work this morning at 7 o'clock plunged through a railing on the street car bridge over Little Yellow creek and crashed to the creek bottom, a sheer drop of probably 20 feet.

Jones was pulled out of the wreckage of his machine by passersby, given medical attention by Dr. J. M. King and taken to the East Liverpool City hospital. After his injuries had been fully dressed he was taken home, having been in the hospital little more than an hour.

Jones, who is employed in the bar mill, was enroute to the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant when the accident occurred. He claims that the steering gear suddenly buckled or caught some way and his car, an old model Overland, swerved to the left hand side of the bridge and dove over into the rock in the practically dry creek bottom below.

A couple of sections of the iron railing along the edge of the bridge were torn off by the machine. The car, which was ruined in the drop, was taken to the Heitman Wrecking company quarters in Wells avenue.

Arrest All Traffic Light Violators

The majority of local motorists have seen the new traffic light at Ninth and Main street and know what it's for and, accordingly, arrests will be made for violating red blocks, Chief of Police John Fultz announced today.

While a number of auto drivers have been observed going through red blocks since the light was installed, there were no arrests made.

The period of leniency granted by police, however, expires tonight. After that it will be a fine of from $5 to $25 as provided in a city ordinance.

HOLD DRIVER OF STOLEN CAR

Aurora, Ill., Authorities Plan Investigation.

Harry Woomer, arrested by police here last week, driving an automobile bearing an Illinois license, believed by authorities to have been stolen from Aurora, Ill., will be held in custody here pending an investigation by Aurora authorities.

In reply to a telegram sent Aurora police authorities after the car had been found here, Chief John Fultz today was asked to hold both the driver and the car. It is likely that a representative of the Aurora police department will be sent here to investigate.

WILL CONTINUE REVIVAL MEETS

Evangelistic services launched yesterday in the Free Methodist church "tabernacle" in Thirteenth and Main streets, will be continued during the week with meetings every evening.

Rev. John McDonald, of East Liverpool, will preach. Special music will be a feature.

Street meeting will be held tonight at 7 o'clock prior to the tabernacle services.

WILL VOTE ON SCHOOL BONDS

Yellow Creek Township Board Plans New Building.

At a meeting of the board of education of Yellow Creek township, it was determined to vote on a band issue of $10,000 at the November election for the purpose of erecting a new brick school building at Salisbury.

The McLain Fire Brick Co., which is operating a large plant at Salisbury, has indicated its willingness to aid in the cost of the building, tentative plans for which call for the erection of a two room structure. The brick for the new school will be obtained through the McLain company.

CLEVELAND MAN WILL RECOVER

Wm. Glaser, Hurt in Auto Accident, is Improving.

Recovering from the effects of injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday morning near McCracken's corners, in the Salem-Lisbon road, William Glaser, of Cleveland, former Wellsville resident, may be removed from the Salem City hospital to the home of relatives here this week.

Several examinations made by Salem physicians Saturday and Sunday indicated that Glaser had escaped with no broken bones or internal injuries and was suffering largely from shock.

The car in which Glaser was riding, together with his brother-in-law and the latter's wife, attempted to pass another machine and skidded, overturning in the roadway.

Glaser was enroute from Wellsville to join his wife, who had been spending the last two weeks here.

Saturday Auto Traffic Heavy

There were more automobiles moving about Wellsville streets Saturday night than probably any other time in the city's history, according to police authorities.

CROWD OF 3,500 AT FIREWORKS

Display is Feature of St. Rocco Observance.

Approximately 3,500 persons, including hundreds from East Liverpool and nearby territory, attended the St. Rocco fireworks display Saturday evening at Nicholson Field, the event being one of the chief features of the annual observance of local Italian people.

Passarelli's band, of Youngstown, gave a concert prior to the fireworks, in front of the school in Eleventh street and played during the pyrotechnical exhibition.

Church services and other events yesterday concluded the observance.

DEFEAT NEWELL IN EXHIBITION

Nash Motors Win From League Champs Here, 7-4.

In a Saturday afternoon exhibition that had no bearing, unfortunately for Wellsville club, on the City league standing, the Nash Motors defeated the Laughlin champions, 7 to 4.

Easton, on the rubber for the locals, gave up 10 hits, but with the exception of one inning, the sixth, he was never in serious trouble. In that frame Renaldi worked him for a pass. Bubin came through with his third hit of the game and Sayre also received a free ticket to first, filling the sacks.

Lange then fouled to C. Coleman, at third for Wellsville, but Grimm's hit scored both Renaldi and Bubin. Easton then fanned Crawford and Webber flied to Adamson at third.

Laughlin used three hurlers. Digman started on the mound, but gave way to Grimm, former Mid-Atlantic hurler, after allowing four hits and seven runs and Grimm, in turn, was supplanted by Ashe who finished the game.

Catcher Lange for Newell had a bad day, a number of passed balls chargeable to him permitting several Wellsville runs.

GEORGIAN IS CHAMP'S CHIEF FOE

Jones Figured to Have best Chance of Unseating Crown Wearer.

By Davis J. Walsh.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 22.—Golfers to the number of 174, the absolute flower and fauna of American fairways, will begin firing steadily and with monotonous persistence at old Peter Preserving Par this morning. The best in the land, they present the last word in accuracy, distance and fighting stomach, but the field was a joke compared with Bobby Jones and George Von Elm, champions past and present respectively. If neither of them wins, the story will make history.

They were the stand out candidates in a field that included men who could and would be a standout anywhere, except here. They were the class, the aristocracy and until the results prove a different story they must so remain.

Only Jones has beaten Von Elm since 1923; only Von Elm has beaten Jones during the same interval.

Of course, the boys like Jones. Why shouldn't they? He won the same amateur championship in 1924 and 1925, took over the British open title in 1926 and 1927 and altogether has dominated the situation since he won his first big title in 1923 at Inwood. Jones, the man with the uncommon name, naturally goes out ahead of any field.

Von Elm? He is a man who would not take "no" for an answer from anyone except Jones until the last championship and then the answer was "yes." A fighting, battling fellow who knew his golf and, best of all, who knew his opponents.

But enough of the outstanding pair. A gent has just made the writer a bet that Jones, Von Elm, Watts Gunn, Eddie Held and Jimmy Goodwin were an even money gamble as qualifiers. It is possible that Jones and Von Elm, the men who were named without a moment's hesitation might be the men who will unhorse my speculative acquaintance, anyhow, the point is that, of eight or nine former champions, he named only two, the past and present holders of the title, whom he thought had a betting chance to make the riffle, even before match rounds began.

Thus we have the booklet broucheur of a national golf championship. No man is sure; no man even is entitled to think that he is sure. That applies to the former champions with particular emphasis. The old order is passing and, unless Ouimet, Gardner, Guilford, Fownes, Marston, Harren and Evans can play golf that they haven't known in some years, they are lost, although Evans would seem to be set for this course and the record shows that he won the open championship here in 1916.

However, the intelligentsia has other favorites. Among the latter are Watts Gunn, the boy helper who collaborated in making Jones what he was in 1925; Jimmy Johnston, local man who ought to know the course; Jimmy Manion, Rudy Knepper and Eddie Held, who have been close to the title without carrying the matter too far; Ben Stein, Western Champion; Frank Dolp and Dr. O. F. Willing, a couple of gents from the pasture; Maurice McCarthy, of Old Flatbush and that most obvious of candidates, George J. Vought, whom Washington was willing to concede to be a first class professional but whom the golf association found to be a gentleman and a scholar upon close investigation.

In other words, it is all a great gamble. Therefore it might seem appropriate to say that the boys will start rolling them this morning, promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Thirty-six holes of medal play will constitute the qualifying round and the betting is that a total of 158 will make the border line without a flutter.

There's Always Chick Evans

This Famous Old Mashie Niblick Wielder Still Ranks Among Best in Amateurdom

Chick Evans continues to be one of the outstanding amateur stars of this broad land of ours despite more than a decade of campaigning.

It was 11 years ago that Chick won his first amateur golf title. That was in 1916 when he first stepped into the big time of the mashie and niblick game. For the next two years, war years, little or no golf was played.

In 1919 Chick didn't get anywhere, comparatively speaking, but in 1920, just to remind the sporting world that he was still around—and with a vengeance, he smacked his way to the amateur championship of that year.

So when Chick this year entered the national amateur at Minneapolis the whole caboodle of entrants from Bobby Jones on down knew that their chances of copping was just a wee bit slimmer because another good man was in their midst.

The United States Golf Association put Chick Evans in the second ten in its ranking. This hardly marks up to his real ability. Chick is still a good first ten man and don't forget it.

There ought to be a lot of good golf in his system yet, Evans still ranks among the best mashie-niblick wielders in amateurdom, bowing to none save, probably, Jesse Sweetser.

"Hollow Shell" Jack Inspects Chicago Training Quarters

Will Warm up for Big Bout Gradually; Sparring Partners to be Called in Saturday.

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Jack Dempsey will trundle his alleged hollow shell out to Lincoln Fields training quarters today to see what can be done about whipping it into shape for the "second battle of Manassas," scheduled for Soldiers' Field here September 22.

Champion Gene Tunney, from whom Dempsey seeks to retrieve his lost heavyweight crown, will not report at his Lake Villa training camp near here until Sept. 1, according to advices received today.

Coincidental with Dempsey's move to training quarters, Tex Rickard prepared to throw open the doors of his downtown box office. Tickets of all denominations, scaling from $5 to $10, are now available to the public.

Dempsey will warm up gradually. He will do little more today than familiarize himself with the camp environs. He will not be in the market for sparring partners before Saturday, according to Leo P. Flynn, his manager. Light roadwork and shadow boxing will be the menu for this week.

With the arrival of Dave Shade from New York today, most of Dempsey's sparring mates will be within earshot. Marty Burke and "Allentown Joe" Gans have been ordered to report not later than Tuesday. Others slated for target practice are "My" Sullivan, St. Paul welterweight, and Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight.

Dempsey will appear before the Illinois boxing commission this week to apply for a license.

That the Manassa mauler is even more popular in Chicago than when he wore the mantle of champion, was demonstrated Sunday afternoon when, accompanied by Mayor Thompson and Tex Rickard, he attended the police field games at Wrigley Field. Thirty-five thousand spectators gave him a roaring reception.

The three celebrities clowned a bit on the diamond, Mayor Thompson posing as pitcher, Rickard as catcher and Dempsey as batter. The crowds swarmed over the field and only quick work on the part of Chief of Police Hughes and two squads of strong-armed coppers saved Dempsey from being mobbed by his admirers.

INDIANA TRUCKS WIN COMMUNITY TITLE

TWO LOOP CONTESTS TONIGHT

Turk Nash at Wellsville; K. T. K. Club at Newell.

IF the five games billed this week in the City Industrial League two will be played tonight, John Fowler's Turk Nash club playing the Wellsville Nash Moors at Nicholson Field, and the K. T. K. third placers defending their hard earned laurels against Pearl Dailey's Laughlin champions at Newell.

The cellar berth in the circuit will be at stake in the Turk Nash-Wellsville contest and although the Wellsville outfit at present is holding that position, a victory over the Turk Nash would relieve them of further responsibility, for the time being, at least.

A win for Turk Nash would elevate Fowler's club to a point within hailing distance of the Katies, especially if the Potters should happen to lose to Laughlin. The McCoy club's lead, in this instance, would be reduced to a half game margin.

Laughlin is still in the face for the second half pennant and if they can oust the league-leading Superior Cords, they mean to do so. On the other hand, if K. T. K., for instance, or any one of the other clubs should slip a fast one over on the West Virginians one of these nights it would materially handicap their chances. But irrespective of whether Laughlin achieves its flag ambitions this half, the Dailey combine will figure in the final series.

HOME RUN DERBY STILL TIED UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Babe Ruth is still tied with Lou Gehrig at 39 today in the home run sweepstakes, as he was forced to retire in the first innings of yesterday's game with Cleveland because of a lame ankle. The Bambino hit a single in his only time at bat, while Gehrig collected two singles.

In the National league, Rogers Hornsby, of the Giants, walloped his 22nd homer, advancing to within one circuit clout of the leader, Cy Williams.

DOWN CLEANERS IN SECOND GAME

Motors Score Seven Runs in Second and Four in Third, Chasing Powell From Slab; Baker Fans 14.

UNLOOSENING a majority of their 10 hits in the second and third innings when they scored all their runs, the Indiana Trucks defeated the Skid Cleaners Saturday afternoon at Columbian park and won the first half season championship. The score was 11 to 7.

By taking Saturday's contest the Trucks cleaned up in the series with two consecutive victories, and as a result, will battle the second half winners at the end of the season for the league title.

The Trucks scored enough runs in their two big innings to win any ordinary game, and although the Cleaners came back in the eighth and ninth to score two runs in each frame, they were unable to overcome the big handicap that faced them from the third inning on.

The Trucks scored seven in the second and four in the third, the Cleaners collecting one in the first and two in the third.

Baker Trucks' twirler, fanned 14 batters and while he was touched up for 10 hits by the opposition he kept them pretty well distributed over the nine innings. Gerace and O'Neil, with a couple of blows apiece, were the leading bat swingers for the winners while Stroble and Dailey, with a similar number, topped the losing squad in stick work.

The contest produced an abundance of errors, eight being chalked up against the Cleaners and 10 against the Trucks.

TIREMEN FACE REAL TEST HERE

NOTHING is impossible of course but what are the chances of the Superior Cords defeating the Homestead Grays, western Pennsylvania's great colored baseball organization?

In face of the Gray's great record of this and other seasons, a Chester victory might seem more of a wish than a possibility, but when the Cords' brilliant showing against the Beaver Falls Elks here last week is considered, a conquest of the Tiremakers over the Gray doesn't appear as much of a myth as it might seem at first thought.

The Elks have licked the Grays in three out of four games this season and the Superior Cords came within an ace of bowling over the O. & P. league champions. However the outcome must remain a matter of conjecture until Wednesday night when the two clubs clash at Smith Field.

The Grays, naturally, are defeated now and then, but their losses are far overshadowed by their victories. Up until this week, the colored club had won 96 games, lost 15 and tied three. This record has been achieved with four pitchers working their turns.

The four hurlers are "Smoky Joe" Williams, who last April observed his 51st birthday; Oscar Owens, who has been serving benders for the Grays for 13 years; Lefty Williams, who hurled the Grays to victory over Laughlin at Newell the forepart of the season; and Charley Britt, one of the most versatile players in colored baseball Britt catches, pitches and plays any position on the club, performing with equal cleverness at any post.

The Grays will play one game, two games, or three games on any one day. On both Decoration day and July 4 they played "triple headers." They cleaned up on May 30 but had a three-way split on the Fourth, winning, losing and tying.

Field of 174 Opens Fire Today on Von Elm's Amateur Title

GEORGIAN IS CHAMP'S CHIEF FOE

By Davis J. Walsh.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 22.—Golfers to the number of 174 the absolute flower and fauna of American fairways, will begin firing steadily and with monotonous persistence at old Peter Preserving Par this morning. The best in the land, they present the last word in accuracy, distance and fighting stomach, but the field was a joke compared with Bobby Jones and George Von Elm, champions past and present respectively. If neither of them wins, the story will make history.

They were the stand out candidates in a field that included men who could and would be a standout anywhere, except here. They were the class, the aristocracy and until the results prove a different story they must so remain.

Only Jones has beaten Von Elm since 1923; only Von Elm has beaten Jones during the same interval.

Of course, the boys like Jones. Why shouldn't they? He won the same amateur championship in 1924 and 1925, took over the British open title in 1926 and 1927 and altogether has dominated the situation since he won his first big title in 1923 at Inwood. Jones, the man with the uncommon name, naturally goes out ahead of any field.

Von Elm? He is a man who would not take "no" for an answer from anyone except Jones until the last championship and then the answer was "yes." A fighting, battling fellow who knew his golf and, best of all, who knew his opponents.

But enough of the outstanding pair. A gent has just made the writer a bet that Jones, Von Elm, Watts Gunn, Eddie Held and Jimmy Goodwin were an even money gamble as qualifiers. It is possible that Jones and Von Elm, the men who were named without a moment's hesitation might be the men who will unhorse my speculative acquaintance, anyhow, the point is that, of eight or nine former champions, he named only two, the past and present holders of the title, whom he thought had a betting chance to make the riffle, even before match rounds began.

Thus we have the booklet broncheur of a national golf championship. No man is sure; no man even is entitled to think that he is sure. That applies to the former champions with particular emphasis. The old order is passing and, unless Ouimet, Gardner, Guilford, Fownes, Marston, Harren and Evans can play golf that they haven't known in some years, they are lost, although Evans would seem to be set for this course and the record shows that he won the open championship here in 1916.

However, the intelligentsia has other favorites. Among the latter are Watts Gunn, the boy helper who collaborated in making Jones what he was in 1925; Jimmy Johnston, local man who ought to know the course; Jimmy Manion, Rudy Knepper and Eddie Held, who have been close to the title without carrying the matter too far; Ben Stein, Western Champion; Frank Dolp and Dr. O. F. Willing, a couple of gents from the pasture; Maurice McCarthy, of Old Flatbush and that most obvious of candidates, George J. Vought, whom Washington was willing to concede to be a first class professional but whom the golf association found to be a gentleman and a scholar upon close investigation.

In other words, it is all a great gamble. Therefore it might seem appropriate to say that the boys will start rolling them this morning, promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Thirty-six holes of medal play will constitute the qualifying round and the betting is that a total of 158 will make the border line without a flutter.

There's Always Chick Evans

Chick Evans continues to be one of the outstanding amateur stars of this broad land of ours despite more than a decade of campaigning.

It was 11 years ago that Chick won his first amateur golf title. That was in 1916 when he first stepped into the big time of the mashie and niblick game. For the next two years, war years, little or no golf was played.

BUCS STAGE ELEVENTH HOUR SPURT

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—Staging a last minute drive down the stretch, the Pittsburgh Pirates trail the Chicago Cubs by only three games today in the National league scramble. As a result of Pittsburgh's second successive victory over Brooklyn yesterday, after the Cubs had dropped a double header in Boston on Saturday, the race has tightened up like a mail-order suit over the week-end.

The Giants plastered the Reds twice and advanced to within one game of the third place Cardinals. The Giants boast a winning streak of four games and have won 19 of their last 25 contests.

Detroit's winning streak of eleven games is the feature of a hot three-cornered fight between the Tigers, the Senators and the Athletics for second place in the American league. The St. Louis Browns, battling for sixth place, have won six straight.

Carmen Hill, mainstay of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, won a 2 to 1 decision over Spittin' Bill Doak of the Brooklyn Robins. The Robins dropped to seventh place.

Scoring three runs in the ninth in a rally featured by Pinch Hitter Mann's double with the bases loaded, the Giants nosed out the reds, 9 to 8, after having spotted the Porkville boys to a six-run lead. The Giants took the nightcap in a romp, 6 to 1.

Rogers Hornsby collected six hits, including his 22nd homer and passed Frank Frisch in the batting averages.

The Cubs will tackle the pesky Braves today, while the Giants will not play until Friday.

As a result of their 7 to 4 defeat by Cleveland, the Yankees lost their first series in the west this season. They kayoed Buckeye early, but Hudlin stopped them like a traffic cop.

The Tigers clawed the Senators for the third time in succession, 11 to 4, and clinched their hold on second place. Haskell Billings, formerly of Brown university, won his second victory in as many starts for the Bengals. Harry Heilmann made three hits and has passed Lou Gehrig in the batting averages.

The Athletics, closing in on the Senators, outslugged the White Sox, 8 to 6. Cochrane's homer with two on featured.

The battering Brown's scorched the Red Sox twice, 5 to 0 and 4 to 3. Sisler's triple won the nightcap.

XII

By BONITA WITT

Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(Stephenson, Indiana's caged ex-dragon, once more staged a show with an element of mystery in having the "black boxes" delivered.)

Accused of trying to blackmail his way to freedom, D. C. Stephenson, life prisoner, announced through his attorneys he would remain silent about Indiana officials until an appeal of his for a new trial had been heard. He had, however, turned over approximately 30 checks to investigators.

Signatures on alleged agreements, too, that had been made public, were declared by office holders and politicians to be forgeries. Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis asserted that a letter purported to have been written by him as a Klansman to Klansmen urging them to vote for and support Ed Jackson for governor was "an absolute forgery."

"As an individual and a friend of Jackson's I urged his election and support to a number of acquaintances," the mayor told me.

Duvall's Assertion.

"D. C. Stephenson, to further his political interests, signed the names of prominent Indianians to letters and he may have used my name in such a manner, without my authority."

Just as quiet seemed to prevail, however, Stephenson's "black box"—which turned out to be two "black boxes"—suddenly put in an appearance after many months of search. Reputed to contain canceled checks and other documents supposed to show Stephenson's dealings with Indiana office holders, prosecutors had been hunting up and down the state for them.

Then, quietly, L. G. Julian, of Evansville, former business associate of the grand dragon, met Emsley W. Johnson of Indianapolis, one of the special prosecutors, in a "round barn" three miles from Washington, in the southern part of the state, and delivered the boxes.

They were rushed to the grand jury at Indianapolis. Sifting of some 10,000 documents began. And the prosecutors expressed themselves as well pleased over the contents.

"What next?" Hoosiers once more asked.

One of the very first Britishers to rush to France in 1914 to help stem the German tide, Major Eric G. Atkinson (above) has forgotten war and is now in America as a member of the British Big Four polo team.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

AFFECTION FOR PRESIDENT COMES TO SURFACE IN CAPITAL

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Review-Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Did you ever know somebody with whom you got along middling well?—a boss, an association, somebody you saw pretty regularly, that you liked all right?—and yet — well, blame it—he had so many rasping little mannerisms that he kept your temper on edge about half the time? — yes, you liked him, but if you lived in Washington you liked him best out in the Black Hills, or somewhere else at a thousand miles' range?—and when he left on one of his long vacations, you were sorry to see him go, but you hoped to goodness nothing would happen to hurry him back?—and when he did come back you were glad to see him, but inside of 24 hours those darn little mannerisms of his were fretting you like the dickens again?

PRES. COOLIDGE

Did you ever know anybody like that?

AND then some day, did he unexpectedly tell you he was leaving for good before long?—he'd let you hear from him from time to time, and now and then he might drop in to see you for a day or two, but he was passing out of your life as an every-day proposition?—and he wanted to say he'd thought a lot of you and hoped you wouldn't forget him?—he hated to be pulling out, as he had to, but the best of friends must part, and all that?

Did anything of that kind ever happen in your experience.

AND then did you suddenly realize that you'd been very fond of that chap all along?—that his little mannerisms weren't irritating a bit, but just harmless little eccentricities? — lovable ones, in fact?—that you'd miss 'em like sixty?—the squawk in his voice, the vinegar in his smile, that New England Yankee way of his, of expressing things?

Sure. Everybody has.

FIT all this psychology onto Washington and Calvin Coolidge, and you've got the two "situations" to a "T"—before and after Coolidge announced the cancellation of his White House lease, from March, 1929.

I'm not speaking of political Washington.

I'm speaking of the Washington that lives here and counts Coolidge as a mortal, whom you're liable to see walking around, trailed by a bodyguard, to be sure, but obviously a human being, like anybody else.

COOLIDGE is currently known in the capital—not to his face, of course—as "the old man."

There's not much poetry but a heap of truth in the statement that the latter sense was the one the bulk of Washington used the term in when it saw Coolidge off for the west. It's distinctly in the former that it'll be used to greet him by when he returns in September.

THE rest of the country may have an idea that Calvin can be talked into reconsidering that "choice" of his as to 1928.

The neighbors don't think so.

From what they've seen of him close up, their impression is that Calvin didn't say what he did about 1928 until he'd made up his mind good and hard, and their observation of him is that, once he's made up his mind, it stays put.

As one Washingtonian expressed it to me the day after that Black Hills announcement came in—

"Migosh! I feel as if somebody was dead."

TIME CLOCK FOR STUDENTS

ALAMEDA, Cal., Aug. 22.—Pupils in Alameda high school are taught the virtue of promptness by punching a time-clock upon their arrival in class.

The experiment at present is limited to the vocational education classes, but it has been so successful that local educators plan to make its use general.

The pupils not only learn the conditions under which adult workmen labor in factories, Charles Cox, vocation director explained, but they also are keenly anxious to keep a neat card by being on time to class.

BUCS STAGE ELEVENTH HOUR SPURT

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Staging a last minute drive down the stretch, the Pittsburgh Pirates trail the Chicago Cubs by only three games today in the National league scramble. As a result of Pittsburgh's second successive victory over Brooklyn yesterday, after the Cubs had dropped a double header in Boston on Saturday, the race has tightened up like a mail-order suit over the week-end.

The Giants plastered the Reds twice and advanced to within one game of the third place Cardinals. The Giants boast a winning streak of four games and have won 19 of their last 25 contests.

Detroit's winning streak of eleven games is the feature of a hot three-cornered fight between the Tigers, the Senators and the Athletics for second place in the American league. The St. Louis Browns, battling for sixth place, have won six straight.

Carmen Hill, mainstay of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, won a 2 to 1 decision over Spittin' Bill Doak of the Brooklyn Robins. The Robins dropped to seventh place.

Scoring three runs in the ninth in a rally featured by Pinch Hitter Mann's double with the bases loaded, the Giants nosed out the reds, 9 to 8, after having spotted the Porkville boys to a six-run lead. The Giants took the nightcap in a romp, 6 to 1.

Rogers Hornsby collected six hits, including his 22nd homer and passed Frank Frisch in the batting averages.

The Cubs will tackle the pesky Braves today, while the Giants will not play until Friday.

As a result of their 7 to 4 defeat by Cleveland, the Yankees lost their first series in the west this season. They kayoed Buckeye early, but Hudlin stopped them like a traffic cop.

The Tigers clawed the Senators for the third time in succession, 11 to 4, and clinched their hold on second place. Haskell Billings, formerly of Brown university, won his second victory in as many starts for the Bengals. Harry Heilmann made three hits and has passed Lou Gehrig in the batting averages.

The Athletics, closing in on the Senators, outslugged the White Sox, 8 to 6. Cochrane's homer with two on featured.

The battering Brown's scorched the Red Sox twice, 5 to 0 and 4 to 3. Sisler's triple won the nightcap.

By BONITA WITT

Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(Stephenson, Indiana's caged ex-dragon, once more staged a show with an element of mystery in having the "black boxes" delivered.)

Accused of trying to blackmail his way to freedom, D. C. Stephenson, life prisoner, announced through his attorneys he would remain silent about Indiana officials until an appeal of his for a new trial had been heard. He had, however, turned over approximately 30 checks to investigators.

Signatures on alleged agreements, too, that had been made public, were declared by office holders and politicians to be forgeries. Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis asserted that a letter purported to have been written by him as a Klansman to Klansmen urging them to vote for and support Ed Jackson for governor was "an absolute forgery."

"As an individual and a friend of Jackson's I urged his election and support to a number of acquaintances," the mayor told me.

Duvall's Assertion.

"D. C. Stephenson, to further his political interests, signed the names of prominent Indianians to letters and he may have used my name in such a manner without my authority."

Just as quiet seemed to prevail, however, Stephenson's "black box"—which turned out to be two "black boxes"—suddenly put in an appearance after many months of search. Reputed to contain canceled checks and other documents supposed to show Stephenson's dealings with Indiana office holders, prosecutors had been hunting up and down the state for them.

Then, quietly, L. G. Julian, of Evansville, former business associate of the grand dragon, met Emsley W. Johnson of Indianapolis, one of the special prosecutors, in a "round barn" three miles from Washington, in the southern part of the state, and delivered the boxes.

They were rushed to the grand jury at Indianapolis. Sifting of some 10,000 documents began. And the prosecutors expressed themselves as well pleased over the contents.

"What next?" Hoosiers once more asked.

One of the very first Britishers to rush to France in 1914 to help stem the German tide, Major Eric G. Atkinson (above) has forgotten war and is now in America as a member of the British Big Four polo team.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

AFFECTION FOR PRESIDENT COMES TO SURFACE IN CAPITAL

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Review-Tribune.

WASHINGTOIN, Aug. 22.—Did you ever know somebody with whom you got along middling well?—a boss, an association, somebody you saw pretty regularly, that you liked all right?—and yet — well, blame it—he had so many rasping little mannerisms that he kept your temper on edge about half the time? — yes, you liked him, but if you lived in Washington you liked him best out in the Black Hills, or somewhere else at a thousand miles' range?—and when he left on one of his long vacations, you were sorry to see him go, but you hoped to goodness nothing would happen to hurry him back?—and when he did come back you were glad to see him, but inside of 24 hours those darn little mannerisms of his were fretting you like the dickens again?

PRES. COOLIDGE

Did you ever know anybody like that?

AND then some day, did he unexpectedly tell you he was leaving for good before long?—he'd let you hear from him from time to time, and now and then he might drop in to see you for a day or two, but he was passing out of your life as an every-day proposition?—and he wanted to say he'd thought a lot of you and hoped you wouldn't forget him?—he hated to be pulling out, as he had to, but the best of friends must part, and all that?

Did anything of that kind ever happen in your experience.

AND then did you suddenly realize that you'd been very fond of that chap all along?—that his little mannerisms weren't irritating a bit, but just harmless little eccentricities? — lovable ones, in fact?—that you'd miss 'em like sixty?—the squawk in his voice, the vinegar in his smile, that New England Yankee way of his, of expressing things?

Sure. Everybody has.

FIT all this psychology onto Washington and Calvin Coolidge, and you've got the two "situations" to a "T"—before and after Coolidge announced the cancellation of his White House lease, from March, 1929.

I'm not speaking of political Washington.

I'm speaking of the Washington that lives here and counts Coolidge as a mortal, whom you're liable to see walking around, trailed by a bodyguard, to be sure, but obviously a human being, like anybody else.

There's not much poetry but a heap of truth in the statement that the latter sense was the one the bulk of Washington used the term in when it saw Coolidge off for the west. It's distinctly in the former that it'll be used to greet him by when he returns in September.

THE rest of the country may have an idea that Calvin can be talked into reconsidering that "choice" of his as to 1928.

The neighbors don't think so.

From what they've seen of him close up, their impression is that Calvin didn't say what he did about 1928 until he'd made up his mind good and hard, and their observation of him is that, once he's made up his mind, it stays put.

As one Washingtonian expressed it to me the day after that Black Hills announcement came in—

"Migosh! I feel as if somebody was dead."

TIME CLOCK FOR STUDENTS

ALAMEDA, Cal., Aug. 22.—Pupils in Alameda high school are taught the virtue of promptness by punching a time-clock upon their arrival in class.

The experiment at present is limited to the vocational education classes, but it has been so successful that local educators plan to make its use general.

The pupils not only learn the conditions under which adult workmen labor in factories, Charles Cox, vocation director explained, but they also are keenly anxious to keep a neat card by being on time to class.

BARRYMORE IN LEADING ROLE

Coming to America without particular heralding Conrad Veidt, whom Europe recognizes as its greatest actor, and who appears as Louis XI in "The Beloved Rogue," John Barrymore's new film at the Ceramic theatre, now numbers his friends in the Hollywood motion picture colony by the hundreds. There is no clearer indication than this of the character and charm of the man who, only a short time ago, arrived in Hollywood a stranger in a foreign land, unable even to speak the language.

Veidt, who was imported at John Barrymore's express request for the difficult role of the king in "The Beloved Rogue" soon became one of the most talke-of men in the motion picture capital because of his personality and his great ability.

Just as Barrymore is at the peak of his profession in America, Veidt is the idol of film fans in Germany, a situation that led to much speculation as to the outcome of their appearance in the same picture. Production of "The Beloved Rogue" was watched with much more than ordinary interest, for with these two in amicable competition, it quickly became apparent that the result would be worth observing. And this proved to be the case.

For the histrionic "duel" of Barrymore and Veidt led both to attain the most impressive standards of their careers. And the consensus of opinion that Barrymore rises above the great German actor is the highest possible praise for him, because Veidt admittedly is magnificent in the role of Louis XI. Barrymore's delineation of Francois Villon, France's famous poet-thief, however, has a fantastic, whimsical quality that marks it as a veritable sensation, calculated to enthrall his great host of admirers.

CONDEMNED MEN DIE TONIGHT

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP FILLING STATION

Today

Britain's Air Plans.
Amateur Prophecy.
Tariff and Farm.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

CLEMENCEAU, the French patriot and mental fighter, is ill and in pain. The man who served his country so well does not deserve to suffer. The old Frenchman jokes about his illness, little he cares for himself. His love is for France.

Some day, before long, in the place to which all good patriots go, he will meet other Frenchmen that have loved their country and done their duty. These will include Jaures, who was murdered at the beginning of the war because he opposed the war and sought to save France from it.

Clemenceau agrees now, in substance, and so do 40,000,000 other French people, with what Jaures said in 1914. He was murdered for saying that then. He is vindicated now. That may be some consolation.

ENGLAND promises to surprise the United States in particular, and the world in general, with a "mystery airplane," now being tried out with great secrecy.

This plane christened, the Bluebird, expected to go 300 miles an hour, five miles a minute, is built by the British Air Minstry.

They actually have an air ministry in Great Britain. That country seems really to appreciate the importance of airplane construction.

HOWEVER individuals here make up for our government lethargy to some extent. Certain Americans are interested in the construction of an airplane with a guaranteed speed of 300 miles an hour that may give the British Bluebird an interesting race.

And Henry Ford has started preliminary work on a superplane to carry 100 passengers and cost $1,000,000.

NIKOLA TESLA says, "power transmitted by radio," that is to say, wireless power, will drive airplanes some day. That's encouraging, giving scientific indorsement to a "guess" made in this column several years ago.

Electricity is power, and power travels through the air, as the lightning proves. It comes from the sky DOWN with crushing force. Way shouldn't it go from the earth UP to supply energy to flying machines."

JOANNA SOUTHCOTT, who died, aged 64, 113 years ago, said she was the lady mentioned in the Apocalypse, made prophecies and left a mysterious box to be opened only in a great emergency, and "in the presence of 24 bishops." The box, now opened, without the required number of bishops, contains only worthless trash.

Vernon Ball Meets Burglar As He Opens Door For Business

Station Attendant Robbed of $72 at 6 O'clock This Morning by Man Who Lays in Wait for Him Inside the Building.

"GIVE ME YOUR MONEY" IS ORDER

Hold-up Man Who Wears Handkerchief Across Face Hurriedly Leaves After Pocketing Money Victim Tells Police.

Vernon Ball, employed as an attendant at the Standard Oil company filling station, Jefferson and West Eighth street was held up and robbed of $72 at 6 o'clock this morning by a masked man who, it is believed, secrted himself in the building at the close of business last night.

Man Hides on Floor.

Ball, according to the police, had just entered the place this morning when he was confronted by a young man with a handkerchief tightly bound around his head and face who arose from the floor when he heard the door opening. With a command of "Give me your money," he proceeded to search his victim. He left hurriedly after he tucked the money down in his pocket.

Police officials were notified and Chief Hugh McDermott, who was given a description of the man, immediately began an investigation of the case.

NO TRACE OF SEVEN MISSING FLYERS FOUND

QUIT TOMORROW

Prayers for Victims Offered in San Francisco Churches.

HONOLULU, Aug. 22.—Not a ray of hope for the missing Dole flyers had resulted today from the most thorough canvassing of Hawaiian waters ever made. The fine-comb search by the navy, by commercial steamers and by island fishing boats has so far been in vain.

Air planes and submarines, combing the waves far out from the islands, found not even a fragment of wreckage to betray the fate of the Golden Eagle, the Miss Doran, and their five pasengers. The Dallas Spirit, the third missing plane is believed to sunk without leaving any traces in this region.

They pointed out that the service given by the radio beacon in directing aircraft had been proved to be valuable. Art Goebel of the Woolaroc, the winning plane, was helped to steer true to his mark all the way across by the radio beacon. The Dole flight also demonstrated the necessity of radio equipment, the local airmen asserted. Hereafter, they hoped, no pilot will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight without both a sending and a receiving set.

Hunt Ends Tomorrow.

Hope that the seven missing Hawaiian flyers are still alive wanted to its lowest ebb today. The Dole planes, Miss Doran and Golden Eagle, were last seen six days ago by lighthouse keepers on the desolate Farollones, 30 miles off the Golden Gate.

The Dallas Spirit, piloted by "Lone Star Bill" Erwin and guided by Alvin Eichwald, disappeared into the void last Friday night. Erwin's radio told of a tailspin and then whined into silence. Airmen fear he nose-dived into the sea and sank beneath the surface. His plane was heavily laden for a 32-hour flight to Hawaii to search for Auggy Pedlar, Vilas Knope, and

DEMAND NEW TRIAL FOR TWO CONDEMNED MEN

Five Hundred Attend "Protest Meeting" Here Sunday.

SPEAKERS HEARD

Resolutions Ordered Sent to Governor Fuller Massachussetts.

Resolutions, demanding "a new and impartial trial" or "the immediate release" of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who are awaiting execution at Boston shortly after midnight following their conviction on murder charges, were adopted by the Sacco and Vanzetti Defense Committee of Columbiana County at a picnic on the Cunningham farm, in California Hollow, three miles north of here, yesterday.

The resolution charges that the two men are "innocent of the crime for which they are charged" and that the pair were "not given a fair trial." Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to Governor Fuller of Massachussetts in an attempt to stay the execution, pending a ruling from the United States Supreme court.

The resolutions were signed by a committee consisting of Ralph Lowe, John Cook, I. Ciccarelli, James Babb, Ross Caruso, Nick Trua, John Caruso, Roy Mahoney, Pete Papendry and Alvin Cullen.

Approximately 500 persons from all parts of Columbiana county attended the picnic advertised as "a protest meeting" against the execution of the two Massachussetts men. Music was furnished by Professor Alexander's band of East Liverpool.

Addresses were made by Charles Bonsall, 87-year old justice of the peace of Salem; Harry Lampher, Leetonia, and others who voice a plea for the two condemned men. George Schepp, East Liverpool presided at the meeting.

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 22.—Funeral arrangements are being made here today for John W. Winn, 72, Democratic leader of northwestern Ohio, and a former member of state legislature. Winn died late Saturday of heart disease.

GENE RECEIVES MARRIAGE OFFER

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Although boxing experts declare that Gene Tunney's wind is in excellent shape, the heavyweight champion was still gasping today from the shock of an encounter with a young lady who asked him to marry her.

The girl walked up to the champion's training table in the Osborne hotel here and asked him to marry her immediately. Gene declined with thanks. Tunney received other offers of marriage today in letters from ambitious young females.

THURSDAY IS "DOLLAR DAY"

Plans have been completed for the annual semi-annual dollar day which will be observed here Thursday under the auspices of the Retail Merchants division of the chamber of commerce.

More than 80 business men are included in the list of those who will participate in this big event for the buying public of East Liverpool and surrounding towns.

Merchants are busily engaged in going over their stocks for the sale which will be added to by many new lines received during the past week. In order to accomodate the wants of buyers extra force of clerks will be added to the regular force of employes.

Shoppers are expected from Lisbon, Leetonia, Salineville, Hanover, Hammondsville, Irondal, Midland, Wellsville, Empire, Toronto and other sections of the upper and lower Beaver Valley.

DONAHEY ILL AT INDIAN LAKE SUMMER HOME

Chief Executive Suffering From Summer Grippe.

NOT SERIOUS

Secretary to Handle Affairs at Columbus Office.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22. — Governor Vic Donahey, is ill with summer grippe at his cottage at Indian Lake, it was announced today at the governor's office. Although the governor's condition was not deemed serious, it was not expected that he would go to his offices at the statehouse here this week.

Jacob Meckstroth, private secretary to the governor, will confer with Senator Clarence Hallman, Cincinnati It was stated when Hallman visits the governor's offices Tuesday afternoon in response to a request from Donahey that Hallman reply to the complaint of Clarence Waddell and his father John Waddell both of Highland county that Hallman recently retained a $1230 fee for alleged services in connection with a $6500 appropriation by the last Ohio legislature to Clarence Waddell.

The legislative appropriation was made because of permanent physical injuries sustained by young Waddell as a result it was claimed of vaccination at Camp Perry in 1921 while a member of the Ohio national guard.

Hallman wrote Donahey last week that he would confer with the Governor Tuesday.

LAWYERS FIGHT TO "LAST DITCH" TO SECURE STAY OF EXECUTION

Governor Fuller Urged to Grant Another Respite.

STONE REFUSES

Men Will Die Shortly After Midnight Unless Executive Acts.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The question of life or death for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was put squarely up to Governor Alvan T. Fuller again today—a bare 12 hours before the condemned radicals were due to march to the electric chair at midnight.

Case Before Supreme Court.

Counsel for the two men appeared at the state house at noon and formally petitioned the governor to grant another respite on the ground that the case is now in litigation in the supreme court of the United States. This action by counsel followed swiftly in the heels of the formal docketing of the case in Washington this morning. They have applied for a writ of certiorari from the nation's highest tribunal.

The case was thrown back on Governor Fuller's shoulders by Attorneys Michael A. Musmanno and Elias Field. They presented to Governor Fuller's secretary formal letters, requesting the respite and setting forth that it would be unfair and unjust to execute the two men while their case is actually in litigation before the supreme court at Washington.

Stone Refuses To Intercede.

STONINGTON, Me., Aug. 22.—Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States supreme court, today refused to issue a stay of execution for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Justice Stone's refusal to intercede was made to Arthur D. Hill, chief of defense counsel, who made a flying and desperate dash by water to the justice's summer home at Isle au Haut, 20 miles off the Maine coast. Hill did not make any statement other than to say that his mission had failed, and Justice Stone made none.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ROADSTER IN CRASH ON EAST FIFTH STREET

Fire Chief Thomas Bryan escaped unhurt when the new city-owned fire department roadster sidewiped two other cars and crashed into a tree in front of the James Rinehart residence, East Fifth street, shortly before the noon hour yesterday.

Bryan was enroute to the No. 2 fire station, East End with a battery charger and near Walnut street attempted to pass another machine driven by a woman. The woman, it is claimed, turned north on Walnut street without signaling just as Bryan attempted to pass her.

The fire department car first struck a machine belonging to Mrs. Ona Scott, parked in Fifth street and then hit another car which was also parked nearby. It then collided with the tree, uprooting it before coming to a stop.

The radiator, one fender and running board on the roadster were damaged. Only slight damage was done to the other machines figuring in the crash.

Does Double Duty

THE Easy's three Vacuum Cups move up and down sixty times a minute, flushing soap and water through the fabric by air pressure and suction. They wash as thoroughly and gently as your own careful hands.

For drying clothes, ready for the line, simply move a lever and in three minutes a whole eight-sheet load of clothes is evenly damp, ready to hang out. The dryer does its work more thoroughly than a wringer, and there is no danger of crushing your fingers. Clothes are dried evenly damp, and even thick hems will not drip. Buttons are safe; and ironing is easier, for no deep wrinkles are squeezed in by the Easy dryer.

No Water to Empty

The new Easy handles all of the water electrically, you don't have to lift heavy pails of water when you are through washing.

Another great convenience is the gas heater beneath the Easy washing tub. Water is kept hot throughout the longest washing, and clothes can be sterilized right in the Easy tub.

Many Other Features

It's no trouble or mess to oil the Easy, it's automatically done. Gear-driven, no leather belts to slip or break. Automatic starting and stopping switch prevents fuses from blowing. Runs quietly and smoothly. Round tubs — sanitary, easy to clean. Lasts for years and years.

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Bartou Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with those men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

Wong, Chinese cook, tells Moore to take Ruth away soon. John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting to take them. Then Clench is murdered and Henshaw tries to fasten the murder on John.

John hears the sound of a motor then Ruth's cry. He finds Wong lying beside the auto, stabbed to death.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

John Moore straightened the limbs and closed the staring eyes.

"All right, Wong" he said, monotonously, "all right. Do you hear? Who did it? Ah, I thought so—" He put his fingers in a slit beneath the left sleeve of Wong's loose coat. When he drew them out again they were wet. "I thought so. All right. All right."

Wong's face was set in a look of ineffable repose; as if his spirit had been withdrawn from his body for a thousand years. Yet John Moore continued to address him as if he were present. And, perhaps, he was. Perhaps Wong knew that those words John uttered were flood waters seeping through the dam of his modern civilization and that presently the dam would go out.

"I'll do it, Wong. I'll find them. Wait here. I'll find her."

John stood up and faced about.

Between him and the house were the three he sought: Roderiguez, Manuel and Henshaw.

Henshaw stood a little in front of the other two and between them. In the glare of the car lamps his face seemed queerly drawn and puckered, the blinking eyes were still.

"You have found another dead man, Mr. Moore?" drawled Henshaw.

"It was you all the time!" said John Moore, with dry lips. "Where is the knife?"

"Another knife?" asked Henshaw and smiled.

Henshaw, watching him, let his smile show for the sneer it was. "You are a bit squeamish. Take it easy, Mr. Moore. What's a Ching more or less between friends?"

He could not see John's face for John stood with his back to the headlights; he saw only that swaying body; and he failed to guess that John swayed in the flood tide of anger—until it was too late.

John Moore's two guns spat fire. Roderiguez and Manuel dropped their right hands; their guns fell to the ground; and the air was filled with broken Spanish curses.

But John's eyes were upon Mr. Henshaw. "You understand," he said. "I can shoot like that. I will kill them—or you like that—if you hesitate. Hold your hands over your head." He threw Henshaw's gun to the ground with the other two. "Take me to Miss Henshaw. Roderiguez, put up your left hand and lead the way; Manuel next—put up your left hand; now Henshaw, go on. Through the kitchen door, Roderiguez; one at a time, slowly. Halt!"

The three halted on the wide threshold of the kitchen door. The glare of the car lamps just reached it. "Roderiguez, light a lamp before I count twenty or I'll break your other arm."

"Carry it," ordered John. "If you drop it, it will be the last thing you ever do. Lead the way."

Mr. Henshaw spoke. "She is upstairs," he said calmly. "In her own room."

They filed through the swinging door into the dining room; down its length and through a door in the far end. In this room Roderiguez turned to his left and crossed to a door which stood open.

"Where does that go to?" asked John.

"To the hall," answered Roderiguez sullenly.

They passed into the small square passage from which a narrow spiral stairway mounted upward into the tower above it.

"Halt!" They all stood still. "Henshaw, do you feel my gun under your ribs? If you say Miss Henshaw is up stairs we will go up. If she isn't up there I'll kill you for trying to ambuscade me on the stairway. And I won't wait to be any too darned sure of that. I'l take no chances. I have your number!"

Henshaw's face twisted slowly about over his shoulder towards John. The lamp light fell down upon it. A face lowering and still; the features blurred nad smudged by the mark of evil quivering behind them.

"I'll enjoy killing you," said John Moore. "Do we go upstairs?"

Henshaw faced forward again. "My room," he said to Roderiguez.

"Then we will have to go back," said Roderiguez to John.

"All right."

Beneath the menace of John's guns they filed back into the room they had left a moment before; the room between the dining room and the hall. Roderiguez stopped before a door opposite the dining room door.

"This is his room," he said.

"Henshaw, is she in there? If you lie to me—"

"Yes, she is there. Wait!"

"No! Rederiguez, open that door!"

"I cannot—with the lamp. My other hand—"

"Put the lamp on the mantel. Keep your hand up! Now, rap on the door."

Roderiguez knocked. There was no answer.

John Moore's voice ground through the silence. "Henshaw, if you have hurt that girl, you'll die when I'm through with you."

John had forgotten Roderiguez but it was the big Mexican who cried, "Dios! You think I let him hurt her? NO!"

John Moore stared at him dazedly. And this was the man—. "Then open the door," he commanded.

Roderiguez turned the knob but the door did not open. "It is locked!" he said.

"Henshaw! Where is the key?"

Henshaw turned toward John again. "She has locked it, inside," he said. John could see that he was struggling to recompose his face into a mask of decency.

"Miss Henshaw!" called John. "Miss Henshaw, are you there? This is John Moore speaking."

And then beyond the door the girl's voice, hoarse and low, as if dragged out of her against her will: "I am here."

"Are you hurt?"

Again her slow voice: "No—not—hurt."

"My god!" raged John. "what have you done to her?"

"She is not hurt," blazed Roderiguez.

"Yes."

"Then open it. Wait! Roderiguez, Manuel and your uncle are out here. I am covering them with my guns. If they attempt to approach you it will be to use you as a shield and I will kill them. You are to open the door and step into this room and then stand still where you are. Do you understand?"

"Yes."

COMEDY PLAY AT THE STRAND

"Pleasure Before Business" Here for Two day Showing.

When a picture can make you laugh and forget the petty annoyances of the day—then it is good entertainment. And "good entertainment" is the verdict of this reviewer on "Pleasure Before Business," Columbia's newest Jewish-Irish comedy, which opens at the Strand theatre today.

Starting with a locale new to a story with a Jewish-Irish background, Director Frank R. Strayer has evolved a novel twist to the pleasure hunting of a humble Jewish cigar manufacturer that makes for many humorous situations.

Max Davidson as the cigar man who seeks pleasure under orders, and carries his family along on his search, gives a delightful characterization that is as humorous as it is human. Rosa Rosanova is a sympathetic mother, and Virginia Browne Faire proves convincing as the charming daughter. Pat OMalley lends strength and sincerity to the role of Dr. Burke, while Lester Bernard as the cautious fiance, does his shade in attracting the laughs.

One hundred and sixteen persons lost their lives in the Johnstown flood. When the Iroquois theater in Chicago burned, 575 were killed. Eleven hundred and ninety-eight perished when the Lusitania was sunk, and 1,517 went down with the Titanic. These catastrophies cover a number of years, but in the same length of time more Americans have been killed by motor cars. Auto accidents don't "just happen." They have plain and simple causes. Most all of them are caused by plain and simple carelessness.

THERE'S ALWAYS OPPORTUNITY.

The commonest cry of youth entering the world of affairs is for "opportunity." So many young men excuse themselves for not getting ahead on the ground that there is no opportunity.

Wherever there is a job there is opportunity. Major General R. H. Allen, who became chief of infantry in the United States army, rose from the ranks of enlisted men. And the army is not generally considered a place of great opportunity for men who are not officers.

It's not the lack of opportunity—it's not knowing what to do with it that makes failure.

WHAT IS RADICAL?

Some time ago a speaker before the Society of Mayflower Descendants condemned "radicalism." Most of us use that word loosely. We see red when somebody says "radical." A thing isn't necessarily bad because it is radical. The very men and women who came to America on the Mayflower were certainly radicals. The patriot army at Bunker Hill was made up entirely of radicals. Columbus, Galileo, Cromwell, Lincoln, and a glorious host of others were radicals. It depends on what kind of radical we are talking about. Probably few of use are able to judge good ones from bad ones.

Very often a redical is simply a man another radical does not like.

WHO IS WHO?

Speaking of radicals, the excited young man on the soapbox at the street corner, who tells us the government is all wrong is what we call a "red." He is "again the government." The rich man who hates the Eighteenth amendment and won't obey it, and keeps liquor in his cellar is also against the government.

How Many Homes

"My wants are few and simple," remarks a citizen accused of lavish tastes because he recently acquired a summer home. "All I want is enough money to live where I want to, when I want to. And all that means is a summer home in the North, a winter home in the South and a comfortable dwelling in my home town for the rest of the time.

"You see, I'd be willing to have one real home out of the three, and live there in the spring and fall, but I'd want to be equally at home in all of the three."

This attitude is probably more general than one would suspect. Look at the hundreds of thousands of northern folk who have bought winter homes, or home sites, in Florida, southern California and other southern regions, and those who want to do likewise. Look at those who are now, by an equally natural process, looking for northern summer somes. The two classes may eventually merge into one.

With the migrating habit once started, who knows where it will end? Talk about the vanishing "saturation point" of automobiles! What is the saturation point of family residences?

No Fun On The Farm

The most depressing thing about farm life, says an observant school superintendent, is not the financial situation but the social situation.

It need not be so bad as it is. "Many a youth lives in a very Eden without knowing it." County people, he declares, do not seem to know how to play. Their greatest poverty is "recreational poverty." The children lack normal play, the young people lack social contacts and interesting, wholesome amusement. There is no loisure program for the adults.

So the country youths, he argues, must be taught to play. They must also be taught appreciation of nature and appreciation of good literature. Social enjoyments, literary enjoyments, outdoor enjoyments, all are within their reach.

There is much truth, undoubtedly, in this view. It has not always been so. Life need not be all labor, surely, even for a farmer. If the mental and social horizon can be widedened, there will be less farm discontent and less drift to the cities.

American Opera Singers

The manager of the Chicago Civic Opera company, on his return from Europe the other day, announced that while he was abroad he had engaged two dintinguished young singers for the coming season. This is quite a normal thing for an opera manager to do. The unusual feature of the case is the fact that both the singers are Americans.

Chase Baromo Sikes, known while singing with the La Scala opera in Milan as Cesarce Baromeo, is a native of Michigan and a graduate of the University of Michigan. The other American singer is Leone Kruse, also a native of Michigan.

American opera companies have an ever-lasting list of native singers on their rolls. Some, like Marion Talley, have achieved their first great fame in their native land. Others, like the two booked in Europe this summer, have been first recognized abroad and have had several successful seasons on foreign stages before singing in America.

In either case their ability has been well proven and has helped to advance America's prestige in the realm of music. Apparently American soil and climate are not inimical to the birth of fine voices or to their artistic development.

Noise

Chicago, always known as a noisy city, has its pre-eminence proved. Scientific tests conducted by acoustic engineers with the best modern instrumental equipment show that Chicago is the noisiest city in the world. And it would be just like Chicago to start bragging about that.

Chicago, however, will be rendered thoughtful by the statement of those engineers that the noise is costing the city more than $5,000,000 a year—which is all it costs London, a much larger city.

Noise is inefficient, because it increases fatigue, decreases speed and errors. So Chicago, which is for efficiency above everything else, will probably take up noiselessness in a serious way one of these days, and set out to become the quietest city on earth.

Little old New York can't be so shallow and frivolous after all, when they have a hot old argument there as to the merits of Beethoven's ninth symphony.

It doesn't necessarily do aviation any good if men, women and children faint all over the place in their eagerness to see Lindbergh.

The fellow who has never been in a sailboat is usually "crazy to go sailing," and crazier when he goes.

Maybe when Aimee McPherson was kidnapped that time, the kidnapers were after that $100,000 that she and Mother Kennedy have divided between them.

Mickey (Himself) McGuire— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and Frank Shutts telephoned asking how to pronounce "po-lop-ony" and I gave a foolish pronunciation right off, nor did I figure out until hours afterward he had tricked me with polo-pony. So at my stint and Jim Tully came with an autographed copy of his new book, "Circus Parade."

In the afternoon with Archie Andrews to see the yacht he purchased from Henry Ford, a neat barque, and to a tea where I talked with an actress full of grave airs and high pretensions and quite bored with the waggishness of several guests.

To a dinner where they served a venison pasty and a coal black pudding, the best I ever ate and then home where Lee Ettleson and Leo Marsh, the scriveners, arrived and we sat up sipping grape juice and talking big until dawn. So to bed.

Underneath the New York Central's high-spun tracks is the rabble of a push cart market. Everything is on display from cheap calico to shoddy furs. Housewives come with baskets and pinched purses to fill their larders while a few blocks south imported servants order without asking prices.

Young toughs lounge on corners. Blank walls are chalked with unprintable challenges. Diapered babies crawl perilously about fire escapes and uncurtained windows reveal the bleak squalor of cramped thread-bare flats. No street offers such a sharp contrast of wealth and poverty.

Harlem's Black Belt, a little northward, continues to display a growing opulence. New stores with glittering fronts, dot Lexon Avenue. Huge electric signs are almost as gaudy as those along Broadway. In almost every block between 125th and 140th streets are cellar cabarets filling nightly with downtown slummers.

"The Row" is also the street housing Florence Mills and others of her race who have prospered on the stage. Two successful novelists live there, also a poet and a concert singer. Expensive automobiles are parked at the curb and dusky damsels promenade with pedigreed pups.

Several novels and magazine articles recently have told of well-known white people who are frequent visitors at musicales, literary readings and parties given along The Row.

It is told there is a millionaire New Yorker who has his own private daily newspaper which is placed on his breakfast table every morning. Only one copy is printed. He is a busy man and the paper is printed to give him the gist of the news, summarizing events that may have an especial interest for him.

That's the dream of every reporter! To have his own paper and print just what he wants to write as he writes it. But most of us can't even get out a handbill.

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Swiss Cooperatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The Swiss people, in addition to yodeling, watch-making, and chasing the playful chamois, go in for cooperative marketing, both retailing and wholesaling, and have found it highly profitable, according to a recent consular report from Basel. The General Cooperative Society which has its headquarters there has paid a dividend of less than 6 per cent, while its dividend rate has been as high as 14 per cent. At the same time a substantial reserve fund has been created.

Indirectly, the United States is responsible for this Swiss cooperative. In 1865 the ribbon factories of Basel were forced to shut down because the Civil War in this country had cut off the American demand for their products. That was the big end of their business. The plan of general cooperative society was thereupon resorted to as the best means of furnishing cheap food and other necessities to the unemployed.

Cooperation was at the time by no means an experiment with the Swiss people. For more than a century attempts had been made to organize to purchase foodstuffs and to encourage savings. The Helvetical Society was formed in 1761 and the Society for the Development and Encouragement of Public Welfare in 1777. From 1846 to 1860 a number of societies were formed by well-to-do citizens to supply corn and bread to the poor at low prices, and the most important of these also featured a savings bank and sick benefit fund.

Thus the way had been paved for the General Cooperative Society when the need for it arose in 1865. It was modeled after the Rochdale Society, the famous English cooperative. Membership was open to all classes of the people and earnings were distributed to members in proportion to their patronage—dividends upon the money spent rather than the money invested with the Society—after setting aside each year 10 per cent for a reserve fund.

Growth Both Rapid and Sound.

The Society started business with one store and a membership of 212. By the end of 1866 three more stores and a bakery had been added, the membership was 555, and the annual turnover was 181,021 francs. Ten years later there were 15 stores and 2333 members and the volume of business had grown proportionately.

The greatest gain was made during the period from 1886 to 1906, when the number of stores increased from 20 to 87, the number of members from 5412 to 28,538, and the annual turnover from 2,347,233 francs to 16,408,008 francs. Last year there were 188 stores with 43,158 members, the volume of business was in excess of 53,000,000 francs, an 8 per cent dividend was paid, and the reserve fund was 3,214,785 francs. These francs, by the way, are all of a par value of 19.3 cents.

Opposition from retail dealers and dissension within the ranks of the members made the early years of the Society difficult, it is stated, but a reorganization in 1869 resulted in rapid expansion and since 1885 the history of the organization has been one of uninterrupted progress.

Of the retail establishments owned and operated by the Society last year, 140 were grocery stores, 34 were butcher shops, 10 were shoe stores, 1 was a department store, and 3 were devoted to household furnishings. Real estate owned was valued at almost $3,000,000.

The largest item in the turnover last year was groceries, $2,742,930. Dairy products sold amounted to $2,351,180, while the butcher shops did a business of $1,829,633. Incidentally, it may be pointed out, the Society did a business of almost three-fourths of a million dollars in wine and beer. Seventy per cent of the total sales were made to members and the remainder to non-members who are encouraged to patronize the stores. Net earnings for the year amounted to $813,821, of which $574,286 went in rebates to members and $202,863 was set aside for amortizations and endowments. The Society now operates five dairy farms, three of which it owns and the other two it leases. Last year it handled 19,600,000 quarts of milk, 266,240 bottles of sterilized milk, 167,520 bottles of cream, 1,707,000 pounds of butter, and 725,000 pounds of cheese.

Encouragement of savings is one of the main tenets of the Society and at the end of last year it carried on its books 16539 individual accounts, representing deposits of $2,183,550. Interests at the rate of 4½ per cent is paid on the savings accounts.

Marketing Cooperatives.

In contrast with this Society, most of the successful cooperatives in the United States are marketing instead of retail organizations, their business covering almost every kind of agricultural product. A grain exchange at Lansing, Mich., did a business of $8,000,000 during the last fiscal year and in 1926 poultry products valued at more than $40,000,000 were marketed by a 67 farmer-owned associations that served 55,000 farmers. Egg sales amounted to $30,000,000, live poultry sales were $4,850,000 and dressed poultry sales $6,500,000. The associations handling eggs sold more than 90,000,000 dozens, 68 per cent of this volume of business being done by 14 associations located in the Pacific Coast States. A single California cooperative handled 28 per cent of the total quantity, while one in the State of Washington handled 24 per cent of the total. Missouri with 9 cooperatives handled about 20 per cent of the total quantity of eggs marketed.

Success in the cooperative marketing of cotton is shown in the record made by the North Carolina Association which on September 1 will distribute almost $500,000 of its reserve fund among its members. This reserve represents 1 per cent deductions from the sales value of the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops marketed through the association. The deduction in connection with the 1922 crop has already been returned and that from the 1926 crop will be refunded next March. The per-bale cost of marketing has been reduced in five years from $8.10 to $4.30, and it is expected that as a result of economies recently instituted the forthcoming crop will be handled at even smaller cost.

Among other achievements claimed by the management is a reduction in interest rate on money borrowed for advances to the growers from 6 per cent to 4½ per cent, a reduction in storage and insurance charges from 50 cents to 35c a bale, the institution of the practice of paying a premium on cotton grading better than middling and of longer staple than ⅞ of an inch, and the development of a direct-to-mill and export business which includes 72 per cent of the cotton handled by the association.

One of the newest cooperatives is an association recently formed in the State of Washington for the marketing of honey. Beekeepers of two counties have been enrolled and it is expected that the association will begin business with approximately 400 tons of honey to market. That amount of honey, it is estimated, will suffice for about 75,000,000 biscuits.

Youngstown Auto Body Firm Makes 'Em Look Like New

To enumerate, in detail, the various phases of work done by the Youngstown Auto Body and Painting Co., would be a tedious and difficult task in view of the vast scope taken in by this skilled organization, but the whole thing may be epitomized in their own slogan, "We make wrecked cars look like new."

Fender and body work is one of the specialties at the Youngstown Auto Body Co. After a wreck or collision of any kinnd that twists up a fender or two or dents the body, take the car to these people and it'll be made as good as new.

Expert welders eliminate the cracks and breaks. Automobile tops of all kinds, closed or open cars, are repaired or rebuilt as the case demands. If desired, inclosures can be applied to open cars to provide comfort for winter driving. Duco finishes and painting of all kinds is done here. Worn out seats are recovered and in fact all kinds of upholstering work can be obtained at reasonable prices considering the efficiency and workmanship.

Clean, Palatable Food is Standard At Busy Bee Here

A world famous military leader once remarked that "an army moves on its stomach," or words to that effect, indicating the importance in which he held the proper rationing of his troops at all times, and his views might be applied with equal effect to the army of business employes and working men that are on the move, helping to build a progressive city, every day.

Food is the fuel that makes the human "machinery" go. At the convenient Busy Bee restaurant in the Diamond, every effort is made to produce and serve clean, palatable food all the day 'round for its many patrons, foods that nourish and foods that please.

The Busy Bee menu covers a wide range and selection from breakfast on through the day and night. The doors of this establishment are never closed. Clean efficient service is provided 24 hours of every day, this, in itself, testifying to the firm's desire to be of service.

Operated by skilled management, men experienced in the restaurant business, the Busy Bee serves only the best and purest of foods, cooked and prepared in a way distinctly to the liking of its clientele.

The Busy Bee operates both table service and a lunch counter and there is always someone to take your order.

Auto Top Shop Aid To Motorists in Achieving Comfort

Your auto may have a nicely colored top and fine long wearing springs in the seats, but if the top doesn't keep the rain and weather out where it belongs and if the springs keep sticking up through the seats to ruin clothing and dispositions, they are not serving their purpose.

There are a number of factors entering into the successful operation of an automobile such as miles to the gallon, power on the hills, comfortable riding, convenience, safety and other things, but none are more important than the comfort and convenience of the occupants.

These are qualities, if they are missing in your particular car, that can be supplied by the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop.

If the top of your car has seen so much service that its condition is beginning to become doubtful, take it to the Auto Top Shop and at reasonable rates, consistent with the quality of the work, your troubles will disappear.

In addition to work on tops, the East Liverpool Auto Top Shop reconditions old upholstering that is beginning to let the springs through and can also fix you up if in need of side curtains.

High quality workmanship and the best of materials in all jobs are standard. The shop is located in Rural lane near the corner of Dresden avenue.

Extensive Service In Jewelry Line At Prescott Shop

A metropolitan service over a wide range in the jewelry field recommends the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop at 704 St. Clair avenue, to East Liverpool district patrons.

Factory experience, an exclusive repair service on Swiss watches, diamond settings, remodeling, designing, selling and chime clock repairing as well as many other more detailed lines are all available at this up to date establishment.

Prescott gives his customers the benefit of experience he obtained in the Elgin and Illinois factories as well as with other jewelry manufacturers and distributors in the east.

He repairs Swiss watches, saving the expense and inconvenience of shipping them to distant shops.

If you have valuable jewelry that, because of design, is somewhat out of date, Prescott promises satisfactory results if you desire to have some particular design remodeled or diamonds reset.

NEW CHRYSLER 72

A Statement from Walter P. Chrysler:

In announcing the Illustrious New Chrysler "72," we are confident that our latest product is as great an advance over today's fine cars as was the famous "70" over the best of four years ago.

The New "72" is ultra modern — again setting new standards, establishing new results for the industry to follow.

The New Chrysler "72" with the Great, New "62", the New "52," and the magnificent Imperial "80" — are Chrysler's covenant of faith with the public which has so generously demonstrated its faith in us.

Longer, Roomier, Faster, Handsomer

The Illustrious New Chrysler "72" —longer, roomier, faster and handsomer—but that tells only a touch of the "72" story.

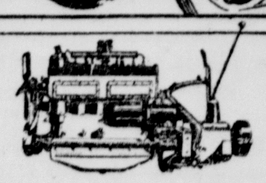
For the first time, in a car costing less than $2000, the New "72" gives an engine of 75 horsepower, with counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft and rubber engine mountings to wipe out every last vestige of vibration.

It gives you speed of 72 and more miles an hour, pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, hill-climbing ability that sweeps you up even mountain grades at constant acceleration.

It gives you rubber shock insulators, pioneered with such great success in the Chrysler Imperial "80." The spring ends are anchored in blocks of live rubber, eliminating wear, noise and the need for lubrication. These insulators, with the special Chrysler spring suspension result in riding smoothness hitherto unknown.

It gives you longer, more beautiful bodies, tastefully appointed, luxuriously roomy, and fully equipped with saddle-spring seat-cushions and adjustable steering wheel to give you the utmost in comfort.

Test it to your satisfaction in every conceivable manner. Only then can you appreciate just how much wider is the gap which the Chrysler "72" has placed between itself and all others in this class.



"Red-Head" Sets Chrysler Performance Farther Ahead

For those who seek supreme performance — speed, pick-up, hill-climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sixes—Chrysler furnishes its new "Red-Head" high compression engine .... The New Chrysler "Red-Head" will be regular equipment on the Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Roadster, giving even greater speed and acceleration than the standards announced. It is also available for all other "72" body models.

Illustrious New Chrysler "72" prices—Eight body styles, $1495 and upwards, f. o. b. Detroit. Chrysler dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

TWO MINE DISTURBANCES IN EASTERN OHIO FIELDS

UNION MEMBERS STOP NON-UNION MEN NEAR CADIZ

Thirty Workers Quit Jobs at Request of Strikers.

REPORT IS FILED

Mine Superintendent Stoned by Union Sympathizers.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—Reports of two disturbances in the Ohio mine fields involving friction between non-union miners and union sympathizers were received at the office of Adjutant General Frank B. Henderson.

One hundred and twenty-five union sympathizers blocked the road early today leading to the Monaco strip mine near Cadiz, Harrison county, according to one report, halting 45 non-union miners who were being transported to the mine for work.

Thirty of the workers were persuaded not to continue working in the Monaco mine, the report here said, although there was no violence. Fifteen non-union workers continued to the mine for work and operators immediately set about seeking more non-union miners to replace those who were persuaded to quit, according to the information received here.

At the Florence mine near Martins Ferry, a mine superintendent was stoned by alleged union sympathizers, according to another report received by Gen. Henderson. Major Sam Cole, O. N. G. C., stationed as an observor at St. Clairsville, was ordered to investigate the latter incident.

Major Ancil Thomas, of Hillsboro, has been ordered to relieve Major John Edwards, as National Guard observor at Athens the adjutant general announced. Edwards is being ordered to Columbus for special duty.

Led by Miss Polly Halliday, Greenwich village girl in a red slicker, twenmarch back and forth before the capitol building. All wore black army men and women began a slow bands and a majority carried cards with legends regarding "the death of justice in Massachusetts."

Two hundred spectators quickly gathered and a force of fifty armed policemen were rushed from headquarters and quartered in the west wing of the state house.

Police broke up three previous "death watches" arresting the walkers on charges of violating the city ordinance regarding loitering.

When the picket lines began to increase in size and when the crowd of spectators increased, twenty policemen rushed from the state house. The pickets were herded together by the armed officers and followed by the crowd, they were placed under arrest and taken to the Joy street station.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK Aug. 22.—General Motors was the sole center of speculative interests in early trading in the stock market today. A huge volume of the old and new stock rapidly changed hands at prices two to four points above Saturday's close, the new stock at the opening advancing three points to 120¼ in a group of sales aggregating 20,000 shares.

A 30-per cent increase in the July output of cars by the corporation, enormous public demand for the new models of Buick and Chevrolet cars, fine prospect of additional cash dividends this year and a better than five per cent annual distribution to holders of the stock after the split-up, were the main factors in the nation-wide demand for General oMtors stock today. Brokerage houses reported an enormous influx of buying orders from all of the important outside financial centers.

Hudson Motors responded to the increase of its annual dividend from $3.50 to $5 a share by jumping two points at the outset but there was plenty of stock available around 85½, at which price active trading took place. Houston Oil, Yellow Truck and other noted ground-gainers were under pressure in the second hour.

Call money was unchanged at three and one-half per cent with some offerings reported in the outside market at three per cent. Cotton fell down a few points at the opening on southern liquidation.

Grain was firm and foreign exchanges unchanged. Some falling off in railroad traffic was reported, also a moderate decline in railroad earnings. Wall street banking houses freely predicted three pre cent call loan rate if outside funds continued to flow in as freely as during the last two weeks.

CAVE EXPLORER RESCUES SELF

NICKAJACK CAVE, SHELLMOUND, Tenn., Aug. 22.—In a semi-hysterical condition, Lawrence Ashley, geologist-explorer, lost in the myriads of subterranean passages, lakes and rivers of Nickajack cave for almost a week, was resting easily today after having walked from his living tomb through a new exit in Georgia.

Emerging from his living tomb yesterday morning after having spent five days burrowing through the subterranean passages of Sand Mountain, Ashley stumbled into the sunlight and fresh air again at a wild and desolate spot known as Castle Rock in the Georgia side about five miles from the entrance to the cave.

His face black with a week's beard, his clothing torn and caked with clay and his battered and torn knapsack upon his bent back, Ashley came upon the child of John Campbell ocal farmer, who screamed the news to her father. Refusing help he made his way towards his home, babbling wildly and incoherently.

After a hearty meal, Ashley narrated a brief account of his experiences in the underground caverns of Sand mountain, warded off newspaper men and went to sleep.

Lawyers Fight

Eight Avenues Open.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Fighting desperately against time and in the "last ditch" an imposing array of lawyers made eight rapid-fire attempts to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, scheduled to go to the electric chair a few minutes after midnight. These moves were:

1—Chief Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill and others asked Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States court at Isle Au Haut, Maine, for a stay of execution.

2—Associate Defense Attorney M. A. Musmanno tried to arrange an interview with Chief Justice William Howard Taft across the American side of the Canadian border.

3—A drive was started on Governor Alvan T. Fuller and his executive council for another respite.

4—A new action of a "new and startling nature" was filed in the United States district court by three famous lawyers—Arthur Garfield Hayes, New York, Francis Isher Kane, Philadelphia and Frank J. Walsh, New York.

5—Federal intervention was sought through United States Senators David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

6—A dash about greafer Boston in search of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, member of the governor's advisory Review commission was made due to reports that department of justice files at Washington would be opened if a member of the advisory committee or a high state official requested such action.

7—Another appeal for a stay was made to Superior Court Judge Sisk, who "sat in" at the conference last week between Attorney Hill and Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall.

88.—Plans were underw way for seeking an injunction restraining the prison warden from carrying out the execution for a week pending proceedings looking to a review of the constitutionality of the law that the state supreme court reviews law points rather than evidence.

An exchange of telegrams between Chief Justice Taft and Attorney Musmanno resulted in the conclusion that a meeting on the American-Canadian border was impossible because of the element of time. A dash north by airplane was practically bandoned.

Deny Any Part in Crime.

The appeals for a stay to the justices of the United States supreme court and to Governor Fuller were based on the ground that an application for a writ of certiorari had been filed with the federal supreme court in Washington and that Sacco and Vanzetti should not be executed until they had an opportunity to present the case before the federal courts. In refusing a stay, Associate Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes said that he would grant a stay if he had any idea that the federal court would grant the certiorari writ application.

The move for federal intervention hinged around the department of justice files, which the defense claims will show that Sacco and Vanzetti were not near the scene of the murder of Paymaster Frederick A. Uarmenter and his guard, Allesandro Berardelli, in South Braintree seven years ago.

The Hayes-Kane-Walsh move was shrouded in the deepest mystery and was said by the Citizens' National Sacco-Vanzetti committee to be "a trump card." The trio of lawyers worked throughout the night and until early morning "preparing papers." These papers will be disclosed only and if thy reach the courts, they said, adding that the papers contained something of a "startling nature."

Plan for Electrocution.

Meanwhile, plans for the electrocution went forward. The executionist tested the death chair. Searchlights were set up outside the Charlestown prison. Several hundred Boston police were ordered on duty at the prison. Places for machine guns were cleared. Streets were roped off. A squad of 100 state troopers, forty mounted, were mobilized for prison duty tonight.

ESTELLE IS AFTER PICTURES

Estelle Taylor, film actress, and wife of Jack Dempsey, is tired of doing nothing on a regular salary; she is quoted as having said: "For an entire year United Artists have religiously abstained from using me in a single picture," adding she wants to work for the pay she's getting or desires her contract broken.

THIEVES LOOT TWO HOUSES

Homes of R. W. Faulk and Herbert Bailey Visited.

Police officials are investigating robberies which occurred during the week-end at the homes of Mrs. Herbert Bailey, West Eighth street, and R. W. Faulk, 218 West Fifth street, in which small sums of money and a large quantity of jewelry was stolen.

Entrance was gained to the Bailey home by means of a skeleton key, while access to the Faulk home was secured by forcing a window. The cases were investigated by Captain Mason Conley and Officer James Haley.

Mildred Doran in the Miss Doran, and for Jack Frost and Gordon Scott in the Hearst monoplane.

Today is scheduled to be the last full day of the search by the United States navy across the 2,400 mile San Francisco-Hawaiian trail. The navy will abandon the search tomorrow, according to official orders.

The airplane carrier Langley, with her brood of thirty observation planes, and the airplane tender Aroostock, with four seaplanes, at her side, will reach today the approximate position at which the Dallas Spirit fell.

Prayers were offered in San Francisco churches that Erwin, Pediar, Knope, Eichwald, Frost, Scott and the brave "Flying Schoolmarm" may yet be found alive. Church services in San Francisco were entirely devoted to intercession with the Alimights on behalf of the missing flyers.

Mrs. Erwin Abandons Hope.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 22.—Hope was abandoned today by the wife of Captain William P. Erwin, pilot of the Dallas Spirit, Pacific Mercy plane, that he ever will be found alive.

A brother, ill with typhoid fever, in the West Collingswood home of her grandparents, monopolized the attention of Mrs. Erwin during the first flying hours after her husband disappeared, but she has been forced to leave the sick bed and give way to her grief. She is now prostrated by sorrow.

Only a technicality placed Mrs. Erwin in the New Jersey home of her relatives instead of in the Pacific with her husband. She and Captain Erwin had completed plans for a flight around the world when at the last minutes, the Erwins learned that all contestants for the Easterwood prize had to be 21 years of age or over. Mrs. Erwin is only 19.

SOME farmers far West think they need to get rid of the tariff. But not all farmers think that. Some realize that farm prosperity depends on buying ability of workers in cities. Buying ability in our cities depends on protection from low wages paid in foreign cities.

Let any farmer who doubts it start a farm in China, or in any European country. He would not write back advising the folks to come over.

"Fascismo, triumphant and enduring, is to last through the ages. Mussolini believes it; the belief makes him happy, inspires his work.

MIGHTY is the spectroscope, of which a majority know nothing except that it works. It has told and proved to us that suns millions of miles away are made of the same elements that make our earth and our bodies. It has even shown us on the sun elemments that we had not yet discovered on the earth.

Now the spectroscope is used to study defects in the metal of automobile engines, allowing scientists actually to LOOK into the cylinders of the engine. Perhaps somebody some day will use the spectra to identify oil, gold and water in the ground.

VOTERS TO PASS ON BOND ISSUE

Electors of Holliday's Cove will pass on a proposed bond issue of $25,000 at a special election to be held on Monday, August 29, for the purpose of improving several streets.

The resolution prepared by Solicitor Thomas Hoffman was read before council and approved, after which the date for the special election was set. The provisions of the election order are that a three-fifths percentage of the vote cast on election day must be for ratification in order to pass the measure.

The proposed $25,000 bond issue calls for the paving of Hudson avenue and Orchard street, from Crothers lane to Maryland avenue with reinforced concrete. The block from Maryland avenue to Hudson avenue will not however be improved until next spring, while the improvement of Orchard street is expected this fall if the bond issue passes.

Mayor C. S. Cattrel appointed the following persons as members of the election board, D. M. Shakley, Morris Hindman, Thomas Campbell, Mrs. F. E. Engel and Mrs. Gertrude Thomas.

The improvement of West, Orchard and Elm streets and Mildren avenue, now being paced with reinforced concrete by Fred Robinson Contracting company, is progressing and will likely be completed before winter.

It will house the farm and garden products, the textile and fancy work displays, culinary exhibits, horticulture and agriculture and the school display among others, as well as the merchants and manufacturers' exhibition.

President George W. Lutz said yesterday that within the next week or ten days everything will be in readiness for the grand opening on Saturday, Sept. 3. JOHN GILBERT IN NEW PICTURE

"Twelve Miles Out" Opens at American Today.

"Sea legs" are acquired by human beings by travel on ships—usually But "sea legs" for cameras are another thing indeed; a new invention that makes photography at sea something hitherto unknown in the annals of the screen.

The new invention was used in the filming of the ocean sequences in "Twelve Miles Out," John Gilbert's new Metro-Galdwyn-Mayer starring vehicles, now playing at the American theatre.

Under the old methods, cameras mounted on ships had the mation of the ship imparted to them, with the result that the sea moved in every direction on the screen, according to how the camera moved on the boat.

The new "sea legs" devices is on the principle of a gyroscope which actuate the modern mariner's compass, and, by its use, no matter how the ship pitches, the camera remains on an even keel.

DINNER STORIES

A Slight Misunderstanding.

The prospective tenant had inspected the bathroom, electric bell, coal cellar, and all the other conveniences of a London flat, and expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the porter.

"Then you can't have the flat."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is 30 years old, married, and lives in Australia, and the other two are in America!"

"That makes no difference," said the porter. "I have orders not to let this flat to anyone with children!"

Wires Crossed.

"Is this Republican headquarters?" asked the inquirer over the wire of the Democratic committee offices.

ENGLAND BUILDS METAL AIRSHIP

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A new all-metal air boat, claimed to be the fastest flying ship of its size in the world and capable of remaining in the air for 14 hours, has recently been constructed by the Blackburn Aeroplane company Lere.

The chief feature of this new airship is the all-metal hull, which not only is lighter than a wooden hull but save a water soakage of 600 pounds. The hull also takes the place of floats on a seaplane. Iris II, as the plane is called, is not a seaplane but a flying ship. Driven by three Rolls-Royce "Condor" engines, developing 2,100 horsepower, the ship can take off from the water for flight at 50 knots.

With ample accommodation for five persons, the flying ship contains the latest modern conveniences for air travel. The navigator's cockpit, with every equipment, is similar to the captain's cabin in a sea-going vessel. There is a separate accommodation for the wireless operator. Three huge tanks are maintained for the storage of water, a culinary department with electrically-heated ovens and portholes along the sides of the ship complete the illusion that one is in an ordinary liner.

The ship is so constructed that it can cruise on the water or remain at its moorings for nine months out of the 12, and will be able to ride out all but the roughest weather.

WELLSVILLE MILL WORKER ESCAPES IN AUTO CRASH

CAR WRECKED AS IT PLUNGES OVER BRIDGE

20-FOOT DROP

Break in Steering Gear is Blamed for Accident.

John Jones, 27 years old, of 419 Buckeye avenue, employe of the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant here, miraculously escaped with cuts and bruises when his automobile in which he was riding to work this morning at 7 o'clock plunged through a railing on the street car bridge over Little Yellow creek and crashed to the creek bottom, a sheer drop of probably 20 feet.

Jones was pulled out of the wreckage of his machine by passersby, given medical attention by Dr. J. M. King and taken to the East Liverpool City hospital. After his injuries had been fully dressed he was taken home, having been in the hospital little more than an hour.

Jones, who is employed in the bar mill, was enroute to the American Sheet & Tin Plate plant when the accident occurred. He claims that the steering gear suddenly buckled or caught some way and his car, an old model Overland, swerved to the left hand side of the bridge and dove over into the rock in the practically dry creek bottom below.

A couple of sections of the iron railing along the edge of the bridge were torn off by the machine. The car, which was ruined in the drop, was taken to the Heitman Wrecking company quarters in Wells avenue.

Arrest All Traffic Light Violators

The majority of local motorists have seen the new traffic light at Ninth and Main street and know what it's for and, accordingly, arrests will be made for violating red blocks, Chief of Police John Fultz announced today.

While a number of auto drivers have been observed going through red blocks since the light was installed, there were no arrests made.

The period of leniency granted by police, however, expires tonight. After that it will be a fine of from $5 to $25 as provided in a city ordinance.

HOLD DRIVER OF STOLEN CAR

Aurora, Ill., Authorities Plan Investigation.

Harry Woomer, arrested by police here last week, driving an automobile bearing an Illinois license, believed by authorities to have been stolen from Aurora, Ill., will be held in custody here pending an investigation by Aurora authorities.

In reply to a telegram sent Aurora police authorities after the car had been found here, Chief John Fultz today was asked to hold both the driver and the car. It is likely that a representative of the Aurora police department will be sent here to investigate.

WILL CONTINUE REVIVAL MEETS

Evangelistic services launched yesterday in the Free Methodist church "tabernacle" in Thirteenth and Main streets, will be continued during the week with meetings every evening.

Rev. John McDonald, of East Liverpool, will preach. Special music will be a feature.

Street meeting will be held tonight at 7 o'clock prior to the tabernacle services.

Yellow Creek Township Board Plans New Building.

At a meeting of the board of education of Yellow Creek township, it was determined to vote on a band issue of $10,000 at the November election for the purpose of erecting a new brick school building at Salisbury.

The McLain Fire Brick Co., which is operating a large plant at Salisbury, has indicated its willingness to aid in the cost of the building, tentative plans for which call for the erection of a two room structure. The brick for the new school will be obtained through the McLain company.

CLEVELAND MAN WILL RECOVER

Wm. Glaser, Hurt in Auto Accident, is Improving.

Recovering from the effects of injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday morning near McCracken's corners, in the Salem-Lisbon road, William Glaser, of Cleveland, former Wellsville resident, may be removed from the Salem City hospital to the home of relatives here this week.

Several examinations made by Salem physicians Saturday and Sunday indicated that Glaser had escaped with no broken bones or internal injuries and was suffering largely from shock.

The car in which Glaser was riding, together with his brother-in-law and the latter's wife, attempted to pass another machine and skidded, overturning in the roadway.

Glaser was enroute from Wellsville to join his wife, who had been spending the last two weeks here.

Saturday Auto Traffic Heavy

There were more automobiles moving about Wellsville streets Saturday night than probably any other time in the city's history, according to police authorities.

Display is Feature of St. Rocco Observance.

Approximately 3,500 persons, including hundreds from East Liverpool and nearby territory, attended the St. Rocco fireworks display Saturday evening at Nicholson Field, the event being one of the chief features of the annual observance of local Italian people.

Passarelli's band, of Youngstown, gave a concert prior to the fireworks, in front of the school in Eleventh street and played during the pyrotechnical exhibition.

Church services and other events yesterday concluded the observance.

DEFEAT NEWELL IN EXHIBITION

In a Saturday afternoon exhibition that had no bearing, unfortunately for Wellsville club, on the City league standing, the Nash Motors defeated the Laughlin champions, 7 to 4.

Easton, on the rubber for the locals, gave up 10 hits, but with the exception of one inning, the sixth, he was never in serious trouble. In that frame Renaldi worked him for a pass. Bubin came through with his third hit of the game and Sayre also received a free ticket to first, filling the sacks.

Lange then fouled to C. Coleman, at third for Wellsville, but Grimm's hit scored both Renaldi and Bubin. Easton then fanned Crawford and Webber filed to Adamson at third.

Laughlin used three hurlers. Digman started on the mound, but gave way to Grimm, former Mid-Atlantic hurler, after allowing four hits and seven runs and Grimm, in turn, was supplanted by Ashe who finished the game.

Catcher Lange for Newell had a bad day, a number of passed balls chargeable to him permitting several Wellsville runs.

Answers to Questions

General Robert E. Lee said: "The thorough education of people is the most efficacious means of promoting the prosperity of the nation." These words of the distinguished Southern General are none the less true now than when he spoke them. Q. How many new motion picture plays are shown each year? J. W.

A. It is estamated that there are an average of eight hundred feature motion pictures presented each year in the United States. In addition, there are of course numerous short subjects, but it is not possible to keep an accurate check on these.

Q. If a man committed a crime in New Jersey for which the penalty was hanging, if the state changed its methods to electrocution before sentence was imposed, would the man be hanged or electrocuted? J. A. C.

A. The New Jersey state prison says that "this story no doubt is a flickering of a certain murder and hanging case occurring during the time of the introduction and passing of our Electrocution Law in 1906. This particular murder case occurred in Middlesex county, this state, and upon conviction, the murderer was sentenced to be hanged. This occurred after the electrocution law had gone in effect. The sentence of hanging was due to the fact that the crime was committed before the act providing for electrocution became a law. This man was hanged according to the sentence and was the last hanging in New Jersey. This occurred some time in 1907."

Q. Are swans considered edible? B. D.

Q. How many street cars are in use in the United States? I. D. T.

A. The neumber of passenger cars operated by electric railways in the United States is approximately 75,000.

Q. How can a sunflower plant be made to produce double flowers? D. P. D.

A. The Bureau of Plant Industry says that it is not uncommon for a sunflower to produce double flowers. The species can be perpetrated by planting the seeds of the double flowered plant. While every flower will not be double there will be an increased number. This has been worked out by botanists in the past and seed for double flowered sunflowers are now on the market.

Q. Why are people from Indiana called Hoosiers? M. M.

A. The origin of the word "Hoosier" is obscure. It first appeared in literature January 1, 1833, in a poem by John Finley, entitled—"The Hoosier's Nest," and soon afterwards the newspapers were discussing the origin of the term. Among the theories suggested is one advanced by James Whitcomb Riley, according to whom the earlier settlers were so pugnacious that they even bit off the ears of their opponents. Any one, therefore, seeing an ear lying upon a dramshop floor would merely inquire "Whose ear?" Another idea is that the term came from the custom of Indiana settlers of answering a knock at the door by calling, "Who's Yere?"

Q. Do all mammals have hair? L. B. M.

A. Hair is the characteristic covering of mammals. Hairs are not wanting on any mammals, but vary greatly in abundance, some being densely clothed while others possess it only on limited parts of the body.

Field of 174 Opens Fire Today on Von Elm's Amateur Title

GEORGIAN IS CHAMP'S CHIEF FOE

By Davis J. Walsh.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 22.—Golfers to the number of 174, the absolute flower and fauna of American fairways, will begin firing steadily and with monotonous persistence at old Peter Preserving Par this morning. The best in the land, they present the last word in accuracy, distance and fighting stomach, but the field was a joke compared with Bobby Jones and George Von Elm, champions past and present respectively. If neither of them wins, the story will make history.

They were the stand out candidates in a field that included men who could and would be a standout anywhere, except here. They were the class, the aristocracy and until the results prove a different story they must so remain.

Only Jones has beaten Von Elm since 1923; only Von Elm has beaten Jones during the same interval.

Of course, the boys like Jones. Why shouldn't they? He won the same amateur championship in 1924 and 1925, took over the British open title in 1926 and 1927 and altogether has dominated the situation since he won his first big title in 1923 at Inwood. Jones, the man with the uncommon name, naturally goes out ahead of any field.

Von Elm? He is a man who would not take "no" for an answer from anyone except Jones until the last championship and then the answer was "yes." A fighting, battling fellow who knew his golf and, best of all, who knew his opponents.

But enough of the outstanding pair. A gent has just made the writer a bet that Jones, Von Elm, Watts Gunn, Eddie Held and Jimmy Goodwin were an even money gamble as qualifiers. It is possible that Jones and Von Elm, the men who were named without a moment's hesitation might be the men who will unhorse my speculative acquaintance, anyhow, the point is that, of eight or nine former champions, he named only two, the past and present holders of the title, whom he thought had a betting chance to make the riffle, even before match rounds began.

Thus we have the booklet brouchcur of a national golf championship. No man is sure; no man even is entitled to think that he is sure. That applies to the former champions with particular emphasis. The old order is passing and, unless Ouimet, Gardner, Guilford, Fownes, Marston, Harren and Evans can play golf that they haven't known in some years, they are lost, although Evans would seem to be set for this course and the record shows that he won the open championship here in 1916.

However, the intelligentsia has other favorites. Among the latter are Watts Gunn, the boy helper who collaborated in making Jones what he was in 1925; Jimmy Johnston, local man who ought to know the course; Jimmy Manion, Rudy Knepper and Eddie Held, who have been close to the title without carrying the matter too far; Ben Stein, Western Champion; Frank Dolp and Dr. O. F. Willing, a couple of gents from the pasture; Maurice McCarthy, of Old Flatbush and that most obvious of candidates, George J. Vought, whom Washington was willing to concede to be a first class professional but whom the golf association found to be a gentleman and a scholar upon close investigation.

In other words, it is all a great gamble. Therefore it might seem appropriate to say that the boys will start rolling them this morning, promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Thirty-six holes of medal play will constitute the qualifying round and the betting is that a total of 158 will make the border line without a flutter.

INDIANA TRUCKS WIN COMMUNITY TITLE

There's Always Chick Evans

This Famous Old Mashie Niblick Wielder Still Ranks Among Best in Amateurdom

Chick Evans continues to be one of the outstanding amateur stars of this broad land of ours despite more than a decade of campaigning.

It was 11 years ago that Chick won his first amateur golf title. That was in 1916 when he first stepped into the big time of the mashie and niblick game. For the next two years, war years, little or no golf was played.

In 1919 Chick didn't get anywhere, comparatively speaking, but in 1920, just to remind the sporting world that he was still around— and with a vengeance, he smacked his way to the amateur championship of that year.

So when Chick this year entered the national amateur at Minneapolis the whole caboodle of entrants from Bobby Jones on down knew that their chances of copping was just a wee bit slimmer because another good man was in their midst.

The United States Golf Association put Chick Evans in the second ten in its ranking. This hardly marks up to his real ability. Chick is still a good first ten man and don't forget it.

There ought to be a lot of good golf in his system yet. Evans still ranks among the best mashie-niblick wielders in amateurdom, bowing to none save, probably, Jesse Sweetser.

TWO LOOP CONTESTS TONIGHT

F the five games billed this week in the City Industrial League two will be played tonight, John Fowler's Turk Nash club playing the Wellsville Nash Moors at Nicholson Field, and the K. T. K. third placers defending their hard earned laurels against Pearl Dailey's Laughlin champions at Newell.

The cellar berth in the circuit will be at stake in the Turk Nash-Wellsville contest and although the Wellsville outfit at present is holding that position, a victory over the Turk Nash would relieve them of further responsibility, for the time being, at least.

A win for Turk Nash would elevate Fowler's club to a point within hailing distance of the Katies, especially if the Potters should happen to lose to Laughlin. The McCoy club's lead, in this instance, would be reduced to a half game margin.

Laughlin is still in the face for the second half pennant and if they can oust the league-leading Superior Cords, they mean to do so. On the other hand, if K. T. K., for instance, or any one of the other clubs should slip a fast one over on the West Virginians one of these nights it would materially handicap their chances. But irrespective of whether Laughlin achieves its flag ambitions this half, the Dailey combine will figure in the final series.

Tonight—Turk Nash at Wellsville (Shaw and Duffy); K. T. K. at Laughlin (Hall and Kinsey).

Tuesday — Laughlin at Superior Cords (Hall and Kinsey).

HOME RUN DERBY STILL TIED UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Babe Ruth is still tied with Lou Gehrig at 39 today in the home run sweepstakes, as he was forced to retire in the first innings of yesterday's game with Cleveland because of a lame ankle. The Bambino hit a single in his only time at bat, while Gehrig collected two singles.

DOWN CLEANERS IN SECOND GAME

Motors Score Seven Runs in Second and Four in Third, Chasing Powell From Slab; Baker Fans 14.

UNLOOSENING a majority of their 10 hits in the second and third innings when they scored all their runs, the Indiana Trucks defeated the Skid Cleaners Saturday afternoon at Columbian park and won the first half season championship. The score was 11 to 7.

By taking Saturday's contest the Trucks cleaned up in the series with two consecutive victories, and as a result, will battle the second half winners at the end of the season for the league title.

The Trucks scored enough runs in their two big innings to win any ordinary game, and although the Cleaners came back in the eighth and ninth to score two runs in each frame, they were unable to overcome the big handicap that faced them from the third inning on.

The Trucks scored seven in the second and four in the third, the Cleaners collecting one in the first and two in the third.

Baker Trucks' twirler, fanned 14 batters and while he was touched up for 10 hits by the opposition he kept them pretty well distributed over the nine innings, Gerace and O'Neil, with a couple of blows apiece, were the leading bat swingers for the winners while Stroble and Dailey, with a similar number, topped the losing squad in stick work.

The contest produced an abundance of errors, eight being chalked up against the Cleaners and 10 against the Trucks.

TUNNEY OFF TO CHICAGO SEPT. 1

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Gene Tunney will not leave here until about Sept. 1, for Chicago, where he will finish training for his bout with Jack Dempsey.

The champion's wind is improving. Three rounds of sparring with Paul Cavalier and three more with Billy Vidabeck tired him but little. Earlier in the day he had jogged six miles along the roads.

TIREMEN FACE REAL TEST HERE

NOTHING is impossible of course but what are the chances of the Superior Cords defeating the Homestead Grays, western Pennsylvania's great colored baseball organization?

In face of the Gray's great record of this and other seasons, a Chester victory might seem more of a wish than a possibility, but when the Cords' brilliant showing against the Beaver Falls Elks here last week is considered, a conquest of the Tiremakers over the Gray doesn't appear as much of a myth as it might seem at first thought.

The Elks have licked the Grays in three out of four games this season and the Superior Cords came within an ace of bowling over the O. & P. league champions. However the outcome must remain a matter of conjecture until Wednesday night when the two clubs clash at Smith Field.

The Grays, naturally, are defeated now and then, but their losses are far overshadowed by their victories. Up until this week, the colored club had won 96 games, lost 15 and tied three. This record has been achieved with four pitchers working their turns.

The four hurlers are "Smoky Joe" Williams, who last April observed his 51st birthday; Oscar Owens, who has been serving benders for the Grays for 13 years; Lefty Williams, who hurled the Grays to victory over Laughlin at Newell the forepart of the season; and Charley Britt, one of the most versatile players in colored baseball Britt catches, pitches and plays any position on the club, performing with equal cleverness at any post.

The Grays will play one game, two games, or three games on any one day. On both Decoration day and July 4 they played "triple headers." They cleaned up on May 30 but had a three-way split on the Fourth, winning, losing and tying.

COLUMBUS PILOT WINS AKRON RACE

"Hollow Shell" Jack Inspects Chicago Training Quarters

Will Warm up for Big Bout Gradually; Sparring Partners to be Called in Saturday.

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Jack Dempsey will trundle his alleged hollow shell out to Lincoln Fields training quarters today to see what can be done about whipping it into shape for the "second battle of Manassas," scheduled for Soldiers' Field here September 22.

Champion Gene Tunney, from whom Dempsey seeks to retrieve his lost heavyweight crown, will not report at his Lake Villa training camp near here until Sept. 1, according to advices received today.

Coincidental with Dempsey's move to training quarters, Tex Rickard prepared to throw open the doors of his downtown box office. Tickets of all denominations, scaling from $5 to $40, are now available to the public.

Dempsey will warm up gradually. He will do little more today than familiarize himself with the camp environs. He will not be in the market for sparring partners before Saturday, according to Leo P. Flynn, his manager. Light roadwork and shadow boxing will be the menu for this week.

With the arrival of Dave Shade from New York today, most of Dempsey's sparring mates will be within earshot. Marty Burke and "Allentown Joe" Gans have been ordered to report not later than Tuesday. Others slated for target practice are "My" Sullivan, St. Paul welterweight, and Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight.

Dempsey will appear before the Illinois boxing commission this week to apply for a license.

That the Manassa mauler is even more popular in Chicago than when he wore the mantle of champion, was demonstrated Sunday afternoon when, accompanied by Mayor Thompson and Tex Rickard, he attended the police field games at Wrigley Field. Thirty-five thousand spectators gave him a roaring reception.

The three celebrities clowned a bit on the diamond, Mayor Thompson posing as pitcher, Rickard as catcher and Dempsey as batter. The crowds swarmed over the field and only quick work on the part of Chief of Police Hughes and two squads of strong-armed coppers saved Dempsey from being mobbed by his admirers.

Two lions at the London Zoo have become so friendly with vagrant rats that the rodents sit on the trough while the pair drink.

BUCS STAGE ELEVENTH HOUR SPURT

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Staging a last minute drive down the stretch, the Pittsburgh Pirates trail the Chicago Cubs by only three games today in the National league scramble. As a result of Pittsburgh's second successive victory over Brooklyn yesterday, after the Cubs had dropped a double header in Boston on Saturday, the race has tightened up like a mail-order suit over the week-end.

The Giants plastered the Reds twice and advanced to within one game of the third place Cardinals. The Giants boast a winning streak of four games and have won 19 of their last 25 contests.

Detroit's winning streak of eleven games is the feature of a hot three-cornered fight between the Tigers, the Senators and the Athletics for second place in the American league. The St. Louis Browns, battling for sixth place, have won six straight.

Carmen Hill, mainstay of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, won a 2 to 1 decision over Spittin' Bill Doak of the Brooklyn Robins. The Robins dropped to seventh place.

Scoring three runs in the ninth in a rally featured by Pinch Hitter Mann's double with the bases loaded, the Giants nosed out the reds, 9 to 8, after having spotted the Porkville boys to a six-run lead. The Giants took the nightcap in a romp, 6 to 1.

Rogers Hornsby collected six hits, including his 22nd homer and passed Frank Frisch in the batting averages.

The Cubs will tackle the pesky Braves today, while the Giants will not play until Friday.

As a result of their 7 to 4 defeat by Cleveland, the Yankees lost their first series in the west this season. They kayoed Buckeye early, but Hudlin stopped them like a traffic cop.

The Tigers clawed the Senators for the third time in succession, 11 to 4, and clinched their hold on second place. Haskell Billings, formerly of Brown university, won his second victory in as many starts for the Bengals. Harry Heilmann made three hits and has passed Lou Gehrig in the batting averages.

The Athletics, closing in on the Senators, outslugged the White Sox, 8 to 6. Cochrane's homer with two on featured.

The battering Brown's scorched the Red Sox twice, 5 to 0 and 4 to 3. Sisler's triple won the nightcap.

By BONITA WITT

Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(Stephenson, Indiana's caged ex-dragon, once more staged a show with an element of mystery in having the "black boxes" delivered.)

Accused of trying to blackmail his way to freedom, D. C. Stephenson, life prisoner, announced through his attorneys he would remain silent about Indiana officials until an appeal of his for a new trial had been heard. He had, however, turned over approximately 30 checks to investigators.

Signatures on alleged agreements, too, that had been made public, were declared by office holders and politicians to be forgeries. Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis asserted that a letter purported to have been written by him as a Klansman to Klansmen urging them to vote for and support Ed Jackson for governor was "an absolute forgery."

"As an individual and a friend of Jackson's I urged his election and support to a number of acquaintances," the mayor told me.

Duvall's Assertion.

"D. C. Stephenson, to further his political interests, signed the names of prominent Indianians to letters and he may have used my name in such a manner, without my authority."

Just as quiet seemed to prevail, however, Stephenson's "black box"—which turned out to be two "black boxes"—suddenly put in an appearance after many months of search. Reputed to contain canceled checks and other documents supposed to show Stephenson's dealings with Indiana office holders, prosecutors had been hunting up and down the state for them.

Then, quietly, L. G. Julian, of Evansville, former business associate of the grand dragon, met Emsley W. Johnson of Indianapolis, one of the special prosecutors, in a "round barn" three miles from Washington, in the southern part of the state, and delivered the boxes.

They were rushed to the grand jury at Indianapolis. Sifting of some 10,000 documents began. And the prosecutors expressed themselves as well pleased over the contents.

"What next?" Hoosiers once more asked.

War Hero Polo Star

One of the very first Britishers to rush to France in 1914 to help stem the German tide, Major Eric G. Atkinson (above) has forgotten war and is now in America as a member of the British Big Four polo team.

AFFECTION FOR PRESIDENT COMES TO SURFACE IN CAPITAL

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Review-Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Did you ever know somebody with whom you got along middling well?—a boss, an association, somebody you saw pretty regularly, that you liked all right?—and yet—well, blame it—he had so many rasping little mannerisms that he kept your temper on edge about half the time?—yes, you liked him, but if you lived in Washington you liked him best out in the Black Hills, or somewhere else at a thousand miles' range?—and when he left on one of his long vacations, you were sorry to see him go, but you hoped to goodness nothing would happen to hurry him back?—and when he did come back you were glad to see him, but inside of 24 hours those darn little mannerisms of his were fretting you like the dickens again?

PRES. COOLIDGE

Did you ever know anybody like that?

AND then some day, did he unexpectedly tell you he was leaving for good before long?—he'd let you hear from him from time to time, and now and then he might drop in to see you for a day or two, but he was passing out of your life as an every-day proposition?—and he wanted to say he'd thought a lot of you and hoped you wouldn't forget him?—he hated to be pulling out, as he had to, but the best of friends must part, and all that?

Did anything of that kind ever happen in your experience.

AND then did you suddenly realize that you'd been very fond of that chap all along?—that his little mannerisms weren't irritating a bit, but just harmless little eccentricities?—lovable ones, in fact?—that you'd miss 'em like sixty?—the squawk in his voice, the vinegar in his smile, that New England Yankee way of his, of expressing things?

Sure. Everybody has.

FIT all this psychology onto Washington and Calvin Coolidge, and you've got the two "situations" to a "T"—before and after Coolidge announced the cancellation of his White House lease, from March, 1929.

I'm not speaking of political Washington.

I'm speaking of the Washington that lives here and counts Coolidge as a mortal, whom you're liable to see walking around, trailed by a bodyguard, to be sure, but obviously a human being, like anybody else.

There's not much poetry but a heap of truth in the statement that the latter sense was the one the bulk of Washington used the term in when it saw Coolidge off for the west. It's distinctly in the former that it'll be used to greet him by when he returns in September.

THE rest of the country may have an idea that Calvin can be talked into reconsidering that "choice" of his as to 1928.

The neighbors don't think so.

From what they've seen of him close-up, their impression is that Calvin didn't say what he did about 1928 until he'd made up his mind good and hard, and their observation of him is that, once he's made up his mind, it stays put.

As one Washingtonian expressed it to me the day after that Black Hills announcement came in—

"Migosh! I feel as if somebody was dead."

TIME CLOCK FOR STUDENTS

ALAMEDA, Cal., Aug. 22.—Pupils in Alameda high school are taught the virtue of promptness by punching a time-clock upon their arrival in class.

The experiment at present is limited to the vocational education classes, but it has been so successful that local educators plan to make its use general.

The pupils not only learn the conditions under which adult workmen labor in factories, Charles Cox, vocation director explained, but they also are keenly anxious to keep a neat card by being on time to class.

BARRYMORE IN LEADING ROLE

Coming to America without particular heralding Conrad Veidt, whom Europe recognizes as its greatest actor, and who appears as Louis XI in "The Beloved Rogue," John Barrymore's new film at the Ceramic theatre, now numbers his friends in the Hollywood motion picture colony by the hundreds. There is no clearer indication than this of the character and charm of the man who, only a short time ago, arrived in Hollywood a stranger in a foreign land, unable even to speak the language.

Veidt, who was imported at John Barrymore's express request for the difficult role of the king in "The Beloved Rogue" soon became one of the most talke-of men in the motion picture capital because of his personality and his great ability.

Just as Barrymore is at the peak of his profession in America, Veidt is the idol of film fans in Germany, a situation that led to much speculation as to the outcome of their appearance in the same picture. Production of "The Beloved Rogue" was watched with much more than ordinary interest, for with these two in amicable competition, it quickly became apparent that the result would be worth observing. And this proved to be the case.

For the histrionic "duel" of Barrymore and Veidt led both to attain the most impressive standards of their careers. And the consensus of opinion that Barrymore rises above the great German actor is the highest possible praise for him, because Veidt admittedly is magnificent in the role of Louis XI. Barrymore's delineation of Francois Villon, France's famous poet-thief, however, has a fantastic, whimsical quality that marks it as a veritable sensation, calculated to enthrall his great host of admirers.
